NAZI-RED WAR RUMORS SPREAD

Senators Oppose Arming Merchantmen

NORRIS HITS PROPOSAL AS INEFFECTIVE

Helped Block Similar Move Before Nation Entered First World War.

FDR HINT DRAWS FIRE

Administration Leader Says He Hopes President Will Consult Congress.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The senate showed distinct coolness today to the idea of arming American merchant ships against submarines, several legislators declaring that such a move would invite Axis attacks.

The discussion was predicated on President Roosevelt's statement that the United States had plans in complete readiness for arming her merchantmen.

Mr. Roosevelt was replying to a question regarding the torpedoing of the Robin Moor, and his words were considered a hint that the necessary orders would be issued if developments warranted.

Senator Norris (Ind., Neb.) told reporters he questioned the effectiveness of arming merchant vessels.

One of the 11 senators who blocked arming of U. S. ships before the nation entered the World war in 1917, Norris said that arming ships "would not give them much protection."

"Even President Wilson admitted that it did not work during the World war," he added.

One highly-placed senator, who has been a key figure in the enactment of administration foreign policy legislation, expressed the hope that the president would "come to congress" before taking such a step. He said it was doubtful that the mere arming of ships would protect them and added that if that were done other and more drastic action was almost certain to follow.

Sabotaged Italian Ship Taken Over

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The maritime commission announced today it had taken formal possession of the first of the 28 sabotaged Italian ships laid up in United States waters.

The commission said its representatives took possession of the ship Clara—6,131 gross tons—at Savannah, Ga., yesterday.

MORE GET JOBS

Employment Here 36 Per Cent Greater Than In 1940.

Employment for Mansfield workers seeking private industrial jobs jumped two per cent in May, C. W. Handley, manager of the Mansfield office of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, said today.

Handley said that the 308 jobs obtained during last month represented a 36 per cent gain over May, 1940. The manager stated that private job placements through the state broke previous records for the third successive month reaching an all-time high of 28,138 in May, a 9.4 per cent increase over April.

Only 87 persons filed new claims for unemployment compensation, a decrease of 12.1 per cent under April. Throughout the state, the decline was 34 per cent.

Handley announced that $6,211.02 was paid to unemployed workers in Mansfield over the period.

RUNS BLOCKADE

German Freighter Attempting Desperate Voyage.

RIO DE JANEIRO—(INS)—In a desperate attempt to run the British blockade through to Germany, the freighter Hermes which has been tied up at Rio De Janeiro harbor for two months sailed today with a huge cargo of cast iron, castor seeds, hides, coffee and cotton.

LAST SLAVE DIES

BURLINGTON—(AP)—The last of 37 freed slaves who settled in this Lawrence county community in 1848 is dead. She was Susan (Aunt Susie) Gordon, 99. The group was freed by the will of their owner, James Twyman, a Virginia planter.

As Social Spotlight Turned Rays on Plymouth

—News-Journal Photos.

Richland county captured the nation's social spotlight yesterday with the "surprise" wedding at Plymouth of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, scion of one of America's wealthiest families, and Eleanor Searle, a concert singer and daughter of a Plymouth physician. Shown here are the principals in the wedding party as they posed for pictures after the ceremony yesterday at 12:30 p. m. in Plymouth's century-old First Lutheran church. MACHINISTS REJECT PLEA

Refuse To Return To Work In San Francisco Shipyards.

(By United Press)

AFL machinists at San Francisco shipyards spurned back-to-work pleas today for the third time.

The one notable breakdown in the government's ship-building stabilization efforts remained unsettled as another no-strike, no-lockout agreement extended the program along the gulf coast.

Harvey Brown, international president of the machinists union, made a personal appeal to the 800 strikers and asked them to return to work. The meeting adjourned without action early today and strikers said there was no concrete proposal to put to a vote.

The machinists voted Sunday to reject President Roosevelt's appeal, dispatched to them by Brown, and previously rejected a senate committee request. With 500 CIO machinists, they have been on strike since May 10 at 11 shipyards, holding $500,000,000 in defense contracts

AFL leaders promoted a back-to-work movement of other craftsmen and denounced the strike as a violation of the Pacific coast master agreement to avert work stoppages.

The machinists asked an hour-

Whitneys Honeymoon, Plymouth Still Gasping Over Big Surprise

Vanderbilt-Whitney Scion and Doctor's Daughter Bride Leave; Townsfolk Bask In Nation's Social Spotlight.

By ESTHER SMITH
(News-Journal Staff Writer)

PLYMOUTH—Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney and his bride were honeymooning "somewhere out in the west" today leaving this little town still gasping over the surprise marriage of a village doctor's daughter, dark-eyed Eleanor Searle, to the scion of one of the country's wealthiest families.

Uninformed of the event that yesterday turned the nation's social spotlight on this Richland county town of 1,400 population the townfolk, with the exception of not more than 150, went about their routine duties unaware that the millionaire sportsman and aviation executive was marrying a native daughter in their very midst.

Only a little more than two hours before the ceremony took place in the century-old First Lutheran church, where the bride had started a singing career that led to New York, did intimate friends learn of the event.

Left almost speechless by the announcement and invitation to attend—the women dropped their household work and concentrated on getting ready for the event. Husbands were notified to meet them at the church at noon and to "be a little early."

There was no time to shop for clothes. Summer prints and dark sheers—things they had on

OPENS INQUIRY

Grand Jury To Probe Morals Case at Bellville.

At least one of the seven delinquency cases involving two Bellville girls probably will be taken before the county grand jury which is now in session, it was learned today.

If indictments are returned in the case, however, they will be held secret, it was said. A number of witnesses who were known to be interested in the Bellville case were subpoenaed to appear before the jury today.

Three men have already been sentenced in the case and four other persons, including one of the girls and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Verne Stambaugh, are awaiting hearings. William Lindsay, 71, Bellville, one of the three sentenced to 120 days in the workhouse, appealed the probate court sentence, and is free under bond.

The grand jury, hearing at least 15 cases, is expected to complete its session late this afternoon.

HANGS SELF IN CELL

CHILLICOTHE—(AP)—Warden F. Lovell Bixby of the federal reformatory here announced that an inmate under observation because of emotional instability—James Poplin, 16, of Shreveport, La.—hanged himself in his cell. He was sentenced for automobile theft.

'Eternal Triangle' Messes Up Domestic Life of Pigeons

The eternal triangle, long-time curse of marital bliss, today had exerted its influence on the coop of racing pigeons being cared for by firemen at central station.

The "star-boarder" pigeon which recently moved in on the pair of pigeons under the firemen's care, has taken over the affections of the female of the pair.

Although pigeon-fanciers claimed that the pigeons mate for life and that the female would die rather than leave her mate (this particular one injured when struck by an auto) the "star-boarder"—a city "slicker" from Cleveland—flew through the air with the greatest of ease and caught her eye.

Sunday night, the husband-pigeon, apparently downhearted by the change, flew away while firemen were cleaning the coop. Firemen C. O. Hall had set the injured pigeon on the ground, unaware that his wings had mended.

A whir of wings brought him about to see the husband-pigeon light on the Municipal building roof. Hall last saw him disappear over a garage roof.

The story begn on June 3 when the injured pigeon was brought to the fire station. Mansfielders were called on to find the bird's mate who turned up only a few hours later. Home life for the couple was serene until the third

VOTE TODAY ON TAX PROVISIONS

House Committee Ready To Act on Methods of Raising Three Billions.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The nation's taxpayers and perhaps a lot of people who never paid direct taxes before may learn today what a congressional committee thinks their contribution should be under the proposed new $3,500,000,000 tax bill.

The house ways and means committee, after weeks of testimony and secret discussions, planned to begin voting on the specific provisions to be included in the unprecedented revenue measure—the biggest in the country's history.

Chairman Doughton (D.-N. C.) said the committee hoped to dispose of a big part of the problem today. Other members said that would mean determination of the new corporation, individual income and state and gift tax rates to be recommended by the committee. Decision on a wide variety of excise tax increases would be postponed for a few days.

While emphasizing that the committee had not voted formally on any new rates, some members said they virtually had agreed on a revision of the method of computing excess profits so as to substantially increase the yield from that source.

Committeemen said they had several alternative sets of rates before them on each type of tax and that the voting today would be to determine which set or combination of them to recommend.

There were strong indications that the treasury's proposal for a schedule of stiff surtaxes on individual income, starting at 11 per cent on the first dollar of taxable income, would be considerably softened by the committee so as not to dig too deeply into the medium incomes. The committee already has voted to continue the present individual exemptions of $2,000 for each married couple, plus $400 for each dependent, and $800 for single persons.

U. S. ORDERS HIT DISTRICT WPA AND CCC

Job Rolls In County To Be Slashed as Result of Retrenchment.

CAMP TO CLOSE JUNE 30

Mohican Park Conservation Unit Notified To Vacate Loudonville Site.

The federal government's retrenchment program hit the Mansfield area from two sides today, bringing an order to abandon the CCC camp at Mohican state park near Loudonville on June 30 and calling for a sharp reduction in WPA employment in the area.

The order called for a 43 per cent cut in state WPA employment which is expected to affect projects employing about 320 persons in Richland county. State WPA rolls will be reduced from 83,000 to 48,500 by the first of next month.

An order to abandon the Mohican park CCC camp June 30 was received by H. Ray Wagner, camp commander. The camp, one of 28 in Ohio, has an enrollment of 147 men. It was established seven years ago and is one of the oldest in the state.

It was closed last fall by government order, but was re-opened about three months ago after a number of organizations and individuals protested the closing. The camp represents an investment of $50,000, Wagner said.

Work of men in the camp has consisted mainly of improving and maintaining the 2,000 acres of woodlands in the park area and planting trees to conserve the soil and add to the park's beauty.

While state WPA officials have not decided on the projects to be closed in the retrenchment move, it is believed that road and bridge jobs will be affected first. No projects will be left unfinished, Dr. Carl Watson, state administrator, asserted.

Between 80 and 100 men are employed on road and bridge projects in Richland county and plans had been set up to boost the employment to 200 men by late in the summer, WPA representatives said.

The WPA housekeeping aid project, which employs about 70 women, recently was given a new lease on life by the county, Mansfield, and Shelby, officials of the three districts agreeing to finance it.

Other workers are being employed on the South Boulevards sewer propect and the sewing project in Mansfield.

Congress is expected to cut the appropriation for WPA and CCC camps for the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, because of the demand for workers in defense industries and the increasing defense costs.

Finns Told Hand Of Nazis Raised To Free Country

Radio Broadcast From Helsinki Stirs Speculation In London That All Is Not Well Between Berlin And Soviet Russia

BULLETIN

HELSINKI—(AP)—Finnish reserves were called at midnight and the government sharply curtailed civilian train traffic soon afterward to facilitate military preparations as Europe stirred with rumors of an impending new German war stroke.

(By International News Service)

Wild rumor and report purporting to show that Germany and Russia are in conflict today overshadowed heavy fighting in the Anglo-German war—about the existence of which there is no doubt.

The bedlam of rumors was one of the strangest developments of the war. The air waves of Europe were flooded with reports of Russo-German conflict—broadcast perhaps for propaganda purposes, perhaps from sheer hysteria.

They came from the length and breadth of Europe—from Tiflis in Russia, from Helsinki, London, Ankara and Stockholm.

Neither Berlin nor Moscow gave the slightest hint that anything but the friendliest relations prevailed between Germany and Russia. And the authoritative British Press association cast doubt upon the reports.

Nevertheless, the London press had a holiday banner-lining the most spectacular of the swirl of war reports.

None was more spectacular than a radio broadcast from Helsinki, Finland, picked up in London. It apparently resulted in a studio brawl.

Angry voices and a scuffle were heard shortly after the Helsinki announcer said:

"The day of liberation is at hand. The sorrow of the Finnish campaign (the Russo-Finnish war) in which our heroic country succumbed to brutal numbers is about to be wiped away. We look forward confidently.

"The hand which gave Finland liberty (a reference to Germany's terms to Russia under the treaty of Brest-Litovsk) is again raised to help Finland."

From Tiflis in Georgian Russia, London radio listeners picked up a broadcast stating that a "certain power" is attempting to reconquer the Bessarabian territory which the Soviet Union recently took from Rumania under an agreement with Germany.

A dispatch from Stockholm quoted travelers arriving at Helsinki from Russia as telling of intensive Soviet mobilization.

But in the midst of this cascade of rumor, seasoned observers recalled similar instances in the past in which "planted" announcements have been used by interested gov-

U. S. TO REJECT NAZI PROTEST

American Diplomats Told To Hold Up Visas In Parts of Europe.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The United States will reject Germany's protest against expulsion of Nazi consular officers and other proscribed officials and will eject them from American territory if necessary, it was learned on good authority today.

This development followed a state department disclosure that U. S. diplomats and consular officials "in certain countries in Europe"—presumably those occupied by Germany—have been ordered to withhold American visas from "aliens who have close relatives still residing in those countries."

The state department revealed the action was taken "in view of the increasing number of instances known to the department where persons leaving certain countries in Europe have been permitted to leave only after entering into an obligation to act as agent in the United States for the governments controlling the countries from which they desired to depart."

The move, latest in a series of U. S.-German estrangements, was described as being aimed at curb-

WARNS AGAINST PINE DEPLETION

Expert Says Nation Imports Two-Thirds of Newsprint.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—John Traquair, director of research for Meade Corporation, of Chillicothe, O., told the Southern Chemurgic conference yesterday the nation must import more than two-thirds of newsprint used by newspapers because "we do not have the raw material to manufacture this additional 2,500,000 tons of newsprint."

He warned that the south's pine forests—store of raw material for paper—faced depletion through "the indiscriminate encouragement of new construction."

PROBE DEATH

FBI Investigate Actress' Disappearance at Sea.

LOS ANGELES —(INS)— Investigation of the disappearance at sea June 3 of Yvonne Castle, 27, stage actress, was being pressed today by the federal bureau of investigation.

The probe was launched after the arrival of the Matson liner Monterey, from which the young woman disappeared as the ship was returning from a South seas cruise.

Passengers told of seeing the actress perched on the ship's rail, and said she had been warned of the danger of sitting there. The navigation company issued a statement that the actress' death was believed accidental, but that all disappearances at sea are subject to FBI inquiry.

The protection was prompt but unnecesary. The bank alarm had been set off accidentally.

JAVA BALANCES ECONOMIC LIFE BY EMIGRATION

Entire Villages Shifted to Underdeveloped Jungle Provinces.

BATAVIA, Java—(U.P.)—Moving whole villages from one place to another is not novel in the Netherlands East Indies. Often hundreds of natives will be chosen from one district to emigrate to the outer provinces.

Their expenses are paid by the government. The object is to cultivate jungle areas in Sumatra, New Guinea, Borneo, or the Celebes.

Generally the natives are more than willing to leave Java, where a teeming population overcrowds the land and limits the rice fields available.

The emigration is not compulsory, all those departing doing so of their own free will. The government informs the emigres that the going will be hard at first, that three or four years of hard labor are necessary before profits can be counted. But from that time on the natives begin to make much more money than they ever would at home in Java. That is the attraction.

Government men pick the emigrants carefully, weeding out those who are too old, have too many children, or are not physically fit. Whole shiploads may leave Java from one section. Admittedly there are tears, but when they revisit their villages a rich man by native standards a few years later recruits flock to government offices begging to be sent away to fresh lands of opportunity.

Communities established under government control in Sumatra, and other areas outside of Java, have proved to be 95 per cent successful. About 16,000 Javanese families emigrate every year, and a larger number is expected to leave their homes for distant provinces soon.

The soil in virgin jungle is exceptionally well adapted to the production of rice, the chief problem being the clearing of trees and undergrowth.

The emigration scheme came in handy not long ago as a diplomatic tool. The Japanese trade commission insisted that Java was not completely developed and demanded that Nipponese farmers be introduced to cultivate the country.

The Dutch carefully pointed out that Java was so overcrowded and overpopulated already that they had found it necessary to introduce mass emigration of sections of the population. The question was dropped promptly from the agenda of the negotiations. Proof was too complete for argument.

No taxes are paid by the newcomers for four years. After that time has elapsed rates are low. The government sets up a hospital, schools, and other public institutions in each community.

Customs and traditions of Java are encouraged in the new settlements. A "gamelan" native orchestra accompanies each large group.

The whole plan is doubly feasible when it is realized that the population of Java increases by 600,000 every year. Figuring about 45,000,000 persons living on the island with a population increase of 13 per cent yearly, the emigration scheme has become almost a necessity.

Zoo Announces Birth of Prize Pigmy Buffalo

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—(U.P.)—Birth of a pigmy buffalo, believed to be the first born in captivity in the United States, has occurred at the San Diego zoo.

The parents of the tiny newcomer scarcely are larger than a two-month-old calf and about one-seventh the size of the American buffalo. They weigh approximately 250 pounds.

Valued at approximately $3,000 the adults were brought to San Diego in 1937 from the Soerabaya, Java, zoo. They have just reached maturity. Their natural habitat is one of the Celebes Islands, off the coast of Sumatra.

Although several zoos in the country have single buffalos, instances of a pair in captivity are rare, Mrs. Belle Benchley, executive secretary of the zoo, said.

More than 50 per cent of the asphalt produced is used in highway construction.

LONDON HEARS NAZI-SOVIET WAR REPORTS

Helsinki Radio Broadcast Touches Off Rumors of New Outbreak.

ernments in a "war of nerves."

But the authoritative British Press association said there was absolutely no confirmation of reports that Rumania and Germany have begun military operations against Russia or presented an ultimatum to the Soviet. It suggested that all such rumors be treated with "utmost reserve."

One report had it that Rumania, on behalf of Germany, had presented an ultimatum to Moscow demanding return of Bessarabia, seized from Rumania by Russia some months ago.

A Reuters dispatch from Jerusalem, quoting a military spokesman, said that the British and Free French forces in Syria have launched an attack on Damascus. Military authorities in London admitted it was "very probable" that such operations were under way.

Heavy fighting was still in progress in North Africa around the Egyptian town of Sollum. A German war communique claimed that at least 200 British tanks have been destroyed or captured by the Germans since fighting was renewed in this sector.

London announced heavy British night attacks on German ports and naval bases, including Bremen and the German-occupied French coast base at Brest, where three German warships — the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen, are still docked.

Meanwhile Germany hailed the new Nazi-Turkish amity pact as a new diplomatic triumph for the reich and a heavy blow to British prestige.

Berlin Crows About New Pact

BERLIN — (INS) — Germany hailed the new Berlin-Ankara pact of Amity today as a diplomatic triumph for the Reich and a heavy blow to British prestige.

Although the Anglo-Turkish pact remains in force, a German foreign office spokesman emphasized the significance of the German-Turkish agreement by stating:

"I leave it to your judgment to pass a verdict on the importance of the treaty in the light of the present war situation and England's position.

"The importance of the pact scarcely needs comment from our side."

(Editor's Note: In London, where newspapers gave the new pact prominent display in their pages, the Daily Mail commented that the pact appeared "harmless" at face value but said "it must be admitted, however, that it represents a German triumph."

(At Ankara Turkish Foreign Minister Eucru Saracoglu declared:

("Turkey and Germany have in the treaty placed the foundation of their friendship on a most solid basis and confirmed that for the future the two countries will not oppose each other in any way. As it is pointed out that other actual existing obligations of the two parties are not affected, it is confirmed that there obligations do not affect the conception of the treaty.")

Moscow Quiet as War Rumor Grows

MOSCOW—(U.P.)—Life in Moscow continued normally today despite reports abroad that Germany was about to attack Russia, or had already attacked after making sweeping demands for economic and possibly other concessions.

The newspapers and the radio published fully today the Turkish-German agreement signed at Ankara last night. There was no editorial comment.

Report Fighting In Bessarabia

LONDON —(INS)— Charges that a "certain power" is attempting to reconquer the Bessarabian territory which Russia recently took from Roumania and that fighting is under way was broadcast by the Tiflis (Russian) radio today.

Broadcasting in the Georgian dialect of Josef Stalin's homeland, the announcer said:

"Contact has been made along the Bessarabian frontier between the glorious, determined frontier guards and advanced outposts of a certain power trying to thrust its way to Kamenetz and Podolski.

"Up to last evening the attack was being victoriously repulsed.

"Jackal contingents (presumably this was a reference to Rumanian forces) are nosing their way behind the spolsors of the Bessarabian reconquest."

The Tiflis radio also announced concentrations of German mechanized divisions and infantry forces as well as important air squadrons at Cernauti, Rumania, and of German sea craft at the port of Constanza.

Russia Calls Up Army Reserves

STOCKHOLM—(U.P.)The Swedish press and radio reported today that Russia is calling up reserves for military service and that "tens of thousands" of Russian children are being evacuated from Soviet cities to safe areas in the country.

Travelers from Finland were reported by the Swedish radio to have said that the calling of reservists to the Red army had been greatly intensified in the last few days.

Russian troops, they said, are pouring northward along the railroad from Leningrad into the areas of Finland ceded to the Soviet at the conclusion of the Russo-Finnish war.

JERUSALEM — (U.P.) — Allied forces, driving on Damascus, have reached the suburb of Messe, site of the big city airport, and are encountering fierce resistance by the Vichy troops, a military spokesman said today.

Germans Say 200 Tanks Destroyed

BERLIN — (INS) — The German high command announced today that German forces in North Africa have destroyed or captured at least 200 British tanks since the current battle raging around the northwestern Egyptian town of Sollum began.

(Editor's note: British military authorities in London declared that British forces in the western desert along the Egyptian-Libyan frontier now are "safely back in their original positions.")

First news dispatches from the embattled North African front said the Sollum battlefield presented a spectacle of "abandoned devastation" following the British retreat.

Hot stretches of the desert escarpment were said to be littered with broken-down British tanks, armored cars, supply trucks, field guns and munition dumps.

These reports said the three-day British offensive covered a large area and probably involved all available British forces in the area.

REALTORS WIN COURT RULING

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Real estate dealers may, without fear of violating bans against practicing law, fill out various legal paper forms in real estate transactions.

They won that right from the supreme court yesterday in a decision that gave them a victory over attorneys who sought to restrain real estate men from filling out various papers on grounds such action was an unauthorized practice of law.

The opinion, upholding lower court rulings, said that the "supplying of simple, factual material such as the date, the price, the name of the purchaser, the location of the property, the date of giving possession and the duration of the offer requires intelligence rather than the skill peculiar to one trained and experienced in law."

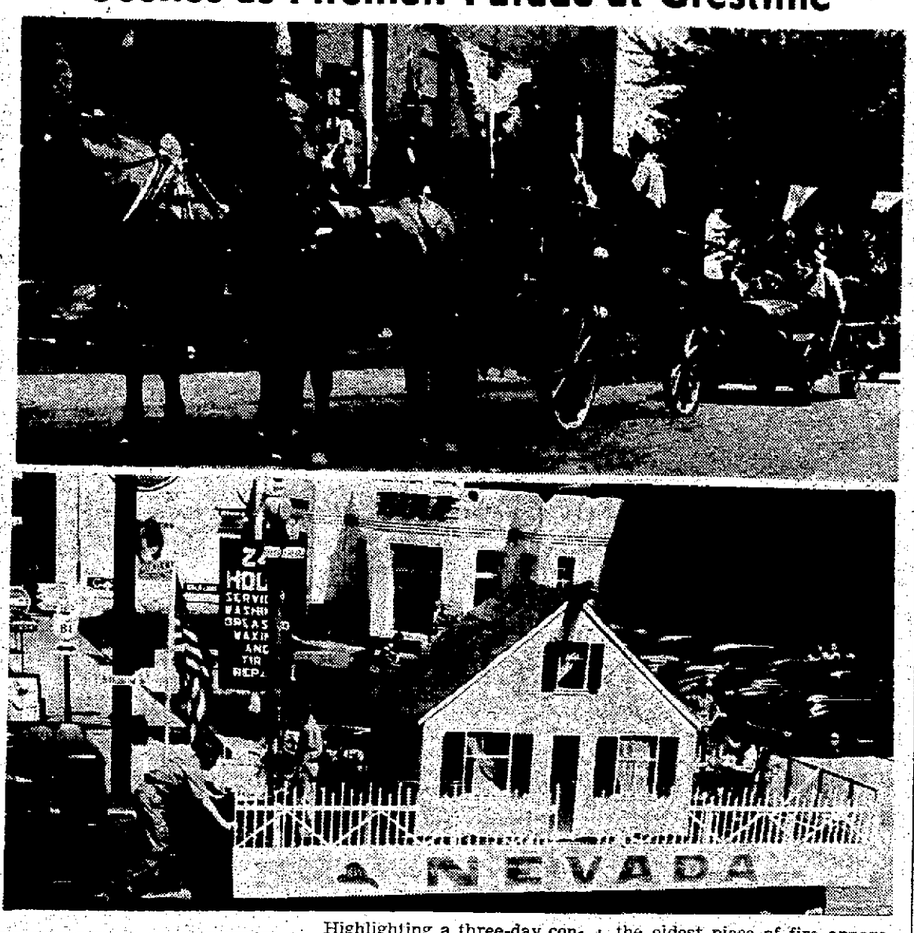
Scenes as Firemen Parade at Crestline



Highlighting a three-day convention of the Northwestern Ohio Volunteer Firemen's association at Crestline was a mammoth parade staged yesterday afternoon. Several thousand persons took part in the event and several thousand more lined the streets. The top photograph shows Crestline's 82-year old fire pumper, "Old Relief," which won first prize for the oldest piece of fire apparatus entered in the parade. The center photo shows a float entered by the Nevada fire department which was judged the "best decorated." Below is one of the snappy majorettes that led the Napoleon high school band. The organization won first prize for being the largest uniformed group to attend the convention.

ing subversive elements. The state department was said to fear that some German aliens, tortured by thoughts of what might be happening to relatives left in Germany, would volunteer as agents for the Nazi secret police in the western hemisphere.

Capital interest centered chiefly on the possibility that in rejecting the German consular protest, the state department might be more explicit than officials have been so far in citing offenses against the proscribed German officials.

So far the charges have been wholly general although it is understood that they relate almost entirely to propaganda.

The German protest against the ouster order was understood to be based on article 17 of the U. S.-German treaty of commerce, friendship and consular rights, signed in 1923. That article states, in part, that "each of the high contracting parties agrees to receive from the other, consular officers in those of its ports, places and cities, where it may be convenient and which are open to consular representatives of any foreign country."

Colorful Career Of Millionaire Ends In Death

NEW YORK —(INS)— Death of Philip M. Plant, 38, sportsman and millionaire playboy, brought to an end the career of one of the most colorful personalities Broadway night life and society has known. He died of a heart attack in a New York hospital last night.

Plant was the son of Seldon Mainwaring, a Waterford, Conn., hotel owner. Following a divorce, his mother ultimately married the late Commodore Morton F. Plant, New London yachtsman and founder of the Florida East Coast railroad, who adopted Phil. When the elder Plant died, he left the bulk of his estate estimated at between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 to his adopted son.

Much of this money Phil spent on many costly escapades and a life of luxury. He was married three times. His first matrimonial venture was with Constance Bennett, whom he married in Greenwich, Conn., in December, 1925.

When this marriage broke up she collected a $1,000,000 trust fund as part of her Paris divorce three years later. She went to Hollywood and gained fame in motion pictures and married the Marquise de la Falaise.

Plant then roamed night club and society circles for a time and his name was linked romantically with many stage personalities and socialites.

pigeon was found and quartered.

Firemen said that they had communicated with the American Racing Pigeon union and discovered that the couple was owned by H. Kropf of 141 Miller street, Buffalo, N. Y. The other is owned by a Cleveland bird-fancier.

The pigeon's flight may cause the firemen some embarrassment. Not long after his disappearance, they received a letter from Buffalo asking them to forward the pigeons.

The missing pigeon, which the firemen feel cannot fly far because of its injury, carries a metal tag on one leg marked "4248 AU 40 Buffalo." On the other leg is a rubber band marked "C 833." Firemen ask that any resident seeing the pigeon return it to them at the station.

ly wage of $1.15 with double time for overtime, but the agreement provided a rate of $1.12 with time and a half for overtime.

At Washington, the national defense mediation board hoped its recommendations for settlement of a dispute at the Bethlehem company, operator of the two largest shipyards, would point the way to settlement of the machinists' strike. Bethlehem was the only company to reject the master agreement.

The NDMB proposed yesterday that Bethlehem accept the agreement with the closed shop provision which had deadlocked negotiations. Acceptance of the proposal by Bethlehem and the AFL metal trades council, however, would not automatically settle the machinists' strike.

AFL strikers at the 11 plants originally numbered 1,200 but 400 obtained jobs in other shops offering the wage scale they had asked.

hand—were worn by the women and the men went in business attire. "Sonny" Whitney helped them to feel at home by wearing a business suit himself.

A sprinkle of talcum powder on his shoes that he had forgotten to dust off, or else had escaped his notice, indicated that a man can't be expected to think of everything at such an auspicious occasion.

"There wasn't much time to get ready for it," Mrs. George Eby, a resident, said as she and Mrs. Franklin Pump went about the task of setting the church in order for the wedding after the vacation Bible classes had met.

"We only found out about it two hours before and the minister asked us if we would help him out by doing some work at the church," she added.

As to what Plymouth thought about a local girl capturing "Sonny" Whitney, she could not say. "It was all so sudden I haven't talked with any one," Mrs. Eby said.

That news of the wedding had a stunning effect on that part of the populace that had been informed just in time to get to the church was indicated on all sides.

Men and women beamed broadly but said they "were too surprised to say," when asked how they felt about a society blue-blood wedding this girl they had known from childhood.

John A. Root, church organist at the time the bride was choir director, was all smiles as he modestly admitted to "always accompanying the bride whenever she sang at Plymouth." Now that she has had a successful career as a concert singer he was "more than pleased to play requested numbers at her wedding."

Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Gaskell were others who said they had "known Eleanor all her life." In fact the doctor had often had her in the dentist chair.

The occasion was not without its traffic tie-up although not because of a string of cars. A big red truck stalled in front of the church and stayed there at least 10 minutes before the driver could locate the trouble. This delayed the arrival of the bride's car at the exact moment it was due at the church.

There was almost complete silence in the church from the time the first guest arrived until after the ceremony when the bride and bridegroom shook hands with everyone in the vestibule.

A faint stir was felt when Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the former Gertrude Vanderbilt and mother of the bridegroom, entered her pew and rested her arms on the pew before her as she bowed her head in prayer for an instant.

Mrs. Whitney herself thought "the wedding perfectly lovely."

And surely no more radiant bride than "Sonny" Whitney's third choice for matrimony had ever walked smilingly down the aisle. The wedding gown was a veritable froth of pink organza and it was worn with a rose pattern veil that flowed unattached from the bride's dark hair.

Only for an instant was the bride's composure broken and the sob that rose in her throat as she repeated her wedding vows was quickly stifled and her tears were dried by a rose point lace handkerchief that had belonged to her maternal grandmother.

The ceremony over, the stalwarth, weather-bronzed bridegroom led his bride into the sunlight where the entire wedding party obligingly posed for news pictures by the church which the bride's grandfather, Felix Fenner, sr., had helped to build in 1840.

A scattering of children and townspeople stood outside the church to see the wedding party after the ceremony.

An event that would have attracted New York newspaper men and women by the score, had they known it, was over.

The bridegroom helped his bride into a new Cadillac convertible coupe, one of his wedding gifts, and the couple left for a small wedding reception in Mansfield.

His other gift is a new home in Wheatley Hills, Long Island, which is now nearing completion.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, JUNE 19, 1941.

The clothing people don't wear nowadays would equip an army.

Japan, with a national income of $4,000,000,000, still pretends to be a world power.

A Job Well Done

HENRY G. BRUNNER, Mansfield, retiring as state manager of the HOLC in Ohio, has the distinction of having practically worked himself out of a job.

It may sound paradoxical, but actually it is high praise. For Brunner did his job so well—the job of supervising repayments of loans made to home owners under the HOLC that there is no need any longer to maintain much more than a skeleton staff.

The HOLC was set up in 1933 to make loans to home owners in danger, due to the depression, of not being able to maintain payments. Great sums of money were handled. Brunner's job was to see that repayments were made, without too much hardship on those who had borrowed.

The record itself speaks adequately of how well he did. Ohio has led for years in the percentage of repayments.

Thus comes to a close another phase of the public life of "Heinie" Brunner. Three times mayor of Mansfield, former chairman of the state Democratic committee, he has served quietly but efficiently.

Though he now declares he won't again assume chairmanship of his party in Ohio, the chances are that Brunner hasn't yet written "finis" to his record as a public servant. He has done too well to be dispensed with.

War and Peace Production

IT'S RATHER early to start worrying about what we're going to do about business, agriculture, employment, and so on, after the war, but various people are doing it. And probably most of them will turn out wrong.

One of the surest guesses is probably this—that we can't forecast the next post-bellum period from the last one. Great changes have come about in production, distribution, the use of raw materials, transportation, foreign markets, and so on. Especially foreign markets.

We haven't many such markets left now, and some economists are saying flatly that the markets we formerly counted on will never come back. No matter how the war turns out, international trade may not recover. And it may not be needed as it was in the past.

This may be particularly true of a self-sufficient country like the United States, which has about half the natural resources of the world. We are discovering new raw materials and developing new sources of wealth all the time. We can provide substitutes, if necessary, for most of the metals and other things we lack. We can feed ourselves. The North American continent can become an almost completely self-sufficient unit, if necessary.

We North Americans don't want to "live alone," but if we had to we could thumb our noses at the rest of the world and get along. That is, if peace were assured. And as it looks now, there will probably be a good deal more war before we can count on peace.

Americanization Miracle

IF AMERICANS were more aware of their national history wouldn't they be less worried about the "refugee problem"? In a review of a new book by Gerhart Saenger, entitled "Today's Refugees, Tomorrow's Citizens," Ralph Thompson of the New York Times writes:

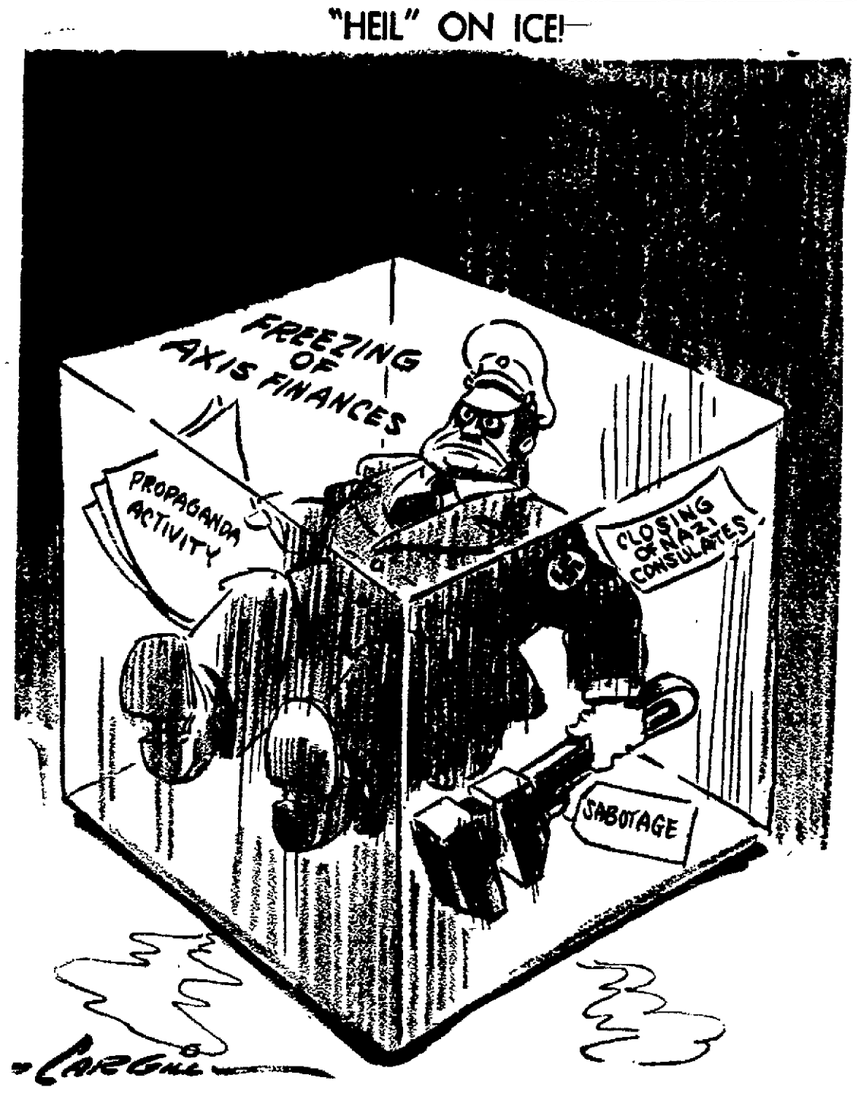
> "If there is anything mysterious about this country whatsoever, it is that successive groups of immigrants over a period of centuries, one group often completely alien to the other and frequently resented or even physically attacked by those who had come before, have been able to blend together in the course of time into practically a new race and to set up a society as stable and powerful as our own."

A careful biologist would probably prefer to call it a "new nation" rather than a race, but the book reviewer's meaning is plain.

What made all these millions "suffer a sea change" when they crossed Atlantic or Pacific or border and become Americans? It was perhaps largely the fact that they came voluntarily to a land of freedom and opportunity, with their own minds already made up to fit into it. Or perhaps the form of government under which they lived and the Constitution on which it rested affected them.

At any rate, a miracle that has been repeated so steadily for 321 years ought to be trusted to continue along the same line, given half a chance to do so.

"HEIL" ON ICE!—



Windmills to Beat Power Shortage

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Not long before the outbreak of the war in Europe an American radio manufacturer, Eugene F. McDonald, jr., was vacationing in Bermuda. The folks there complained bitterly to Commander McDonald about their lack of natural resources. They said they had no coal or oil, had to import so many things.

"What would you do about it," McDonald asked them, "if you had a Niagara Falls here?"

"Why, we would build a power plant that would make it unnecessary for us to import any coal or oil," they said.

"Don't you realize," said McDonald, "that in this constant trade wind which blows over your islands that you have more power than can be generated at Niagara Falls?"

"But how can we utilize it?" they asked.

"Windmills," said the naval reserve officer, succinctly.

McDonald knows about windmills. Some years back, he began wondering how he could sell radios to farmers who wanted them, but had no electric current. The answer soon came. He hooked up with an inventor, and pretty soon they were selling little windmills and dynamos to farmers. The outfit could be sold, at a profit, retail for $15, though the farmer would have to buy his storage battery in addition. They had sold hundreds of thousands of these outfits to farmers before McDonald talked to the folks in Bermuda.

Knowing that this rediscovery of the windmill as a practical servant had been applied to a good many other purposes besides providing the power for a radio, a friend asked McDonald recently if this might not furnish the solution to the present electric power shortage, assuming of course that there is a shortage, which most of the electric utility officials deny.

Commander McDonald replied that the use of the windmill in this country as a source for electric power was not economically sound in large scale operations, though it was very satisfactory in small scale operations.

In war, however, and national emergencies bear a striking resemblance to war conditions, sound economics is often thrown overboard. We are proposing to build pipe lines to take the place of tankers, as pointed out in a recent dispatch, though the tanker is a much cheaper form of transporting oil.

So it occurs to lay observers that before this emergency and "power shortage" has gone much farther we are likely to see more windmills in this country. One of the reasons is that there is a terrible bottleneck in turbines, which are of the essence in producing electric power from steam. In fact President Roosevelt urged the St. Lawrence seaway, which will not be completed until four years after it has been started, at the most optimistic calculations, because it would release turbines for those parts of the country not adjacent to big water power developments. We need turbines for destroyers and cruisers, also, and we are way behind present commitments because of that long drawn out strike at Allis-Chalmers.

Many communities in this country, as recently as 40 years ago, were grinding their corn and doing other chores with windmills. This includes some of the southeastern section of the country now so seriously hampered by lack of sufficient power, due in part to the drought and in part to the necessity of giving the aluminum plants in that section every kilowatt they can use.

With the development of the gas engine most of these disappeared. Then came Rural Electrification. Now, in the southeast, both oil and electricity must be conserved. Maybe the windmill is coming back!

Renew That Lease!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

REMEMBER Sergeant York, the tall boy from Tennessee who went across and mopped 'em up in 1917 and came back in a blaze of glory? Well, he's still running true to form. Standing before the Unknown Soldier's Tomb on Memorial Day, facing the deadliest menace this nation has ever known, Sergeant York made a few remarks which should rock us back on our complacent heels—for fair!

"Many ask," said he, "what we the veterans of the World war, gained by fighting 'to make the world safe for democracy.' Let me answer them now. It gave me 23 years of living in a country where the Goddess of Liberty is stamped on men's hearts as well as on the coins in their pockets.

"By our victory in the last war, we won a lease on liberty, not a deed to it. Now, after 23 years, Adolf Hitler tells us that lease is expiring and, after the manner of all leases, we have the privilege of renewing it or letting it go by default."

That, fellow patriots, is a mouthful, if ever I heard one. For Sergeant York hit us right where we've lived since 1917, but where we won't be living another 23 years if we don't get busy pronto.

No, I'm not urging war. I don't think war ever settled anything. It's a beastly business, any way you look at it. But I do believe in looking at it grimly . . . without any illusions. And realizing the fact that:

COMPLACENCY AND CONCEIT CAN TRAP A NATION INTO WAR JUST AS SURELY AS GREED AND AGGRESSION.

We're not bullies, we Americans. No grabbers. We're all for living and let live. But we are babies. We think that because Grandpa gave us a lovely sand pile to play in everyone else should promise to stand off and not molest our patty-cake paradise.

Like heck they will!

The Old World—and the Orient—see these United States and our much vaunted Liberty as we should see them—realistically. They know, if we don't, that national honor and prestige, national privilege and power, can't be bequeathed or copyrighted. They must be won anew and guarded afresh by every generation.

The blood that Grandpa shed in the Revolution won't keep Willie's shirt on today. Nor will it even guarantee that Willie has a backbone under that shirt.

Sergeant York is right. We haven't any "deed to Liberty." Nor any right to a place at the top—UNLESS WE WIN IT FOR OURSELVES WITH A BRAND-NEW CROP OF SWEAT AND BLOOD AND TEARS.

Democracy is a swell title. But you've got to renew it each season, along with your automobile license, or you'll just be out of luck.

"Renew that lease—or let it go by default!", says Sergeant York. Also Adolf Hitler. Also Life.

U. S. Military Experts Bet On Nazis If Hitler, Stalin Split

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—In any showdown between the giant army of Adolf Hitler and the equally huge battalions of Josef Stalin, U. S. military experts are betting on the Nazis.

Russia's army for years was the largest in the world, even today may be somewhat bigger than the German. Furthermore, it first developed many military tricks now made so effective by the Nazis, such as parachute troops and the mass use of tanks.

Furthermore, the Russian army is well-equipped, well-trained and well-disciplined, though not nearly as well mechanized as the German.

However, Hitler has two big advantages over Stalin. One is the German genius for organization and efficient transportation. The other is the fact that Germany can send lightening strokes against Russia in two or three different areas, and to defend against these the Russian army has to be scattered over a tremendous area instead of concentrated in two or three places.

For instance, U. S. experts figure Hitler will strike at Stalin from three directions:

1. Via Finland toward Leningrad. Already General Mannerheim, who hates Russia, has been in conference with German generals, and for some time has been ready to co-operate with Germany in a drive on Leningrad.

2. On the other hand, Germany might strike from Warsaw through Brest-Litovsk into Polish Russia.

3. Finally Hitler might move from Rumania through the Ukraine to Kiev and Odessa. This would be the deadliest attack of all, aimed to cut Russia off from her main southern outlet to the sea. Already German troop transports are reported at Black Sea ports of Rumania and Bulgaria, waiting to strike at Russian oil on the other side of the Black Sea.

Or Hitler could attack on all three of these fronts at once, simultaneously using long-range Nazi bombers to blast Moscow and Leningrad.

Result (?): Nazi military men who sit around the beer gardens in Switzerland and Sweden boast that Russia would crumble in three weeks.

Harry Bridges Deportation.

The Harry Bridges deportation case in San Francisco is now closed and awaits decision by the trial judge. Only he knows what the outcome will be. But near the very close something happened which nearly upset the government's applecart. Richard Frankensteen, CIO Auto Worker official, who tried to stop the North American Aviation strike, was put on the stand as a government witness.

The idea of having Frankensteen testify was proposed by Director of Immigration Lemuel Schofield in charge of the deportation proceedings. But it was opposed by FBI Assistant Director Earl Connelley, who asked if Schofield knew what Frankensteen was going to say on the witness stand. Schofield indicated that the United Auto Worker Vice-President was going to tell about Bridges' communist background, but admitted that he had not gone into the details of his testimony.

"I'm asolutely against any witness going on the stand until he has reviewed his testimony in advance," Connelley remonstrated.

So they talked with Frankensteen, who, however, declined to reveal his testimony. Later Connelley saw Frankensteen talking with Bridges in the corridor and warned Schofield to be careful. The Immigration director, however, insisted that he be put on the stand.

Almost immediately after he was sworn in Frankensteen pulled a prepared statement out of his pocket and proceeded to berate the Justice Department for trying Harry Bridges twice.

While government attorneys rose to object, Frankensteen pounded the government all over the lot. But the trial judge would not stop him because he was the government's own witness.

So Frankensteen proceeded calmly to the end of his prepared statement, stepped down from the witness chair, put on his hat and caught a plane for Los Angeles to join the North American Aviation negotiations.

Capital Chaff.

To take care of expanding personnel, the British Embassy has already built two annexes, and now is about to build another . . . . Lady Gabriel, noted British philanthropist who adopted 22 French children after the World war, has come to this country with her husband, Sir Vivian Gabriel, member of the British Air Mission . . . War Department telephone operators don't even know the branch number for the Chief of Staff . . . When Congressman Tinkham, of Massachusetts encounters any Bay Staters in Washington, he turns on a stereotyped speech of welcome—the same speech, word for word, every time.

Auto Showdown.

Behind that demand of Undersecretary of War Patterson for a 50 per cent slash in auto production is a head-on showdown in a long undercover inner Defense battle between the "business as usual" boys and the military chiefs.

It never leaked out, but before Patterson sent his letter to OPM insisting on the auto cut, the two groups clashed face to face at a meeting in his office.

Among those present at this meeting was OPM Director General Knudsen. The former General Motors head was told bluntly that unless auto production was drastically curtailed it would be impossible to obtain the steel and alloys needed for the greatly expanded plane, ship, freight car and pipe line programs. One or the other had to be sacrificed; there wasn't enough metal for both autos and defense.

The military chiefs backed their arguments with the following telling figures:

Despite the 20 per cent auto cut three months ago, the industry has been making new production records for weeks. Last week it established an all-time high with 132,000 cars. At present rates of production the industry is operating on a 11,000,000-ton steel consuming basis.

This tonnage almost exactly coincides with the steel shortage which OPM experts several weeks ago said would face the country.

Military chiefs also argued that there was no real need for this huge auto output since over 10,000,000 good used cars are in the hands of dealers. They also claimed that in addition to taking urgently needed steel and alloys from defense, the auto industry was using tens of thousands of badly needed skilled craftsmen and machine tools

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—A quiet tragedy has unfolded in the home of a former Swedish orphan who came to America and worked his way into a position of affluence and prestige. This man has considerable money. He is affable. A big man, he is never too busy to see even his office boys.

This man has two sons of military age. When the draft laws went into effect he thought his sons would enlist as a matter of course. One of them went immediately into the army, and the old man was extremely proud. "What about you?" he then asked of the second son.

"Who, me? Not me papa . . . I got married yesterday. They're not going to get me in the army."

The old man was never one to mince words. He never was one to make idle threats either. He told the boy simply that he not only was disappointed in him, he was ashamed. He cut him off without any money. He even got him out of town by securing a job for him in a distant city. Meanwhile, the other son is taking to army life readily, and remains the apple of the old man's eye. "My boy," he says proudly, "is doing his bit."

Tom Johnstone is the head of a comic art "factory" in New York. That is, his studios handle many of the comic strip advertisements that fill the newspapers and magazines. Recently Tom wrote a play called "Snookie," and, as was natural, it was about comic strip artists.

The reviewers leaped on this play with hobnail boots. They belabored it mercilessly. One critic who disliked it immensely was Sidney B. Whipple of the World-Telegram, who wrote: "The scene of Mr. Johnstone's egregious imaginings is a 'comic art department' of a newspaper, as conceived by one who apparently never saw the inside of a newspaper shop."

Now this was a windy statement. Mr. Johnstone may be no great shakes as a playwright, but he certainly knows newspaper shops. As a matter of record, he was f years comic editor of the old World, which merged with the Telegram when it folded and became Mr. Whipple's own paper, the New York World-Telegram.

Fewer even than troll cars in Manhattan, which are disappearing fast, are the brass gongs the motormen used to bang with their feet. They have been replaced with horns that give off a soft but insistent "burr."

If you travel from the outskirts of Brooklyn to the upper reaches of the Bronx by subway it will take as much time as going by train from New York to Philadelphia. . . . That's how long New York is.

Ralph Edwards says he spends an average of $100 a week for props on the "Truth or Consequences" program. . . . His most expensive "prop" was an elephant and its stable mate, a donkey, a camel, and a dog, which had to be transported to N. Y. from Trenton, N. J.

A Farmer's Diary

Summer Rainstorm

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

It was a sultry afternoon. Great thunderheads moved slowly up from the western horizon. There was no breeze. The chickens stole beneath some burdock leaves and panted. The cattle in the meadow showed perspiration along their flanks and shoulders. Great drops of beaded moisture stood out upon their smooth black noses.

High over the line of trees four turkey buzzards glided in graceful arcs. I could see their bodies lift as they touched the edge of warmer, rising currents. Tips of rocks, almost buried in the earth were moist, as if with morning dew. Suddenly the aspen leaves twinkled their whited under side toward the east, and near at hand, upon a post, a mourning dove called that rain was on the way.

In half an hour the western sky grew darker and deep reverberating thunder broke the quiet of our valley. Hot streaks of zigzag fire cut the darkness of the clouds and descended upon the distant hills. Louder and louder the thunder rolled, until in awe the smaller children clung tightly to my hands as we stood on the lawn to watch the coming storm.

An even cloud of fog, like a whitened wreath, rolled faster than the heavy shower. Then the dark line of falling rain could be seen, growing steadily higher as it marched up and across the western sky. The air grew suddenly colder. The children shivered and crowded closer until the first great drops began to burst and spatter. Then our little company broke and rushed for shelter through the open cottage door.

We sat inside, and watched the distant landmarks of the valley fade into misty whiteness, then the nearer fences and trees, until at times the red gable of the barn was blotted out. Our home was completely engulfed by the crashing, roaring storm, completely lost in a tangled maze of rain.

Then clouds grew lighter in the west and far down along the border of the woods, a long line of blue sky appeared, even though in the east, from a leaden sky the heavy thunder still roared on. The children, in their bathing suits, were already wading in the yellow water of the roadside ditch. I followed them and watched the fun—until presently one shouted, "Look—the rainbow!" And there seeming to come to earth in our neighbor's pasture, was the great emblem of hope and promise, "set in the clouds."

Let's Look Around

'Fine People' Wherever You Go

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

WEST YELLOWSTONE, Montana—This small Montana town claims prominence only as the western gateway to Yellowstone National Park, to which fact it really owes its existence, as many transient dollars are stopped here by restaurants and other small business places before tourists enter the park.

Our car had scarcely stopped before an elderly man stepped up and inquired pleasantly, "What part of Ohio are you from?", which, by the way, has been a frequent inquiry throughout the entire trip.

The reply, "Mansfield," elicited information that the inquirer was a former Columbus resident, who now spends his summers in this section and winters around Los Angeles.

He and his wife were just making ready for a fishing trip but he stopped long enough to volunteer information on points of interest that "mustn't be missed."

ONE of the letters that reached us at Salt Lake City suggested: "Some time write about the fine people you meet."

That is a large order—if any particular individuals were to be selected for mention—as cordiality seems to be an attribute among people of the southwest and west, while tourists are almost uniformly friendly and sociable, with an inclination toward informality and a habit of starting a conversation along some such line as "I see you're from Ohio; we're from Indiana"—or Michigan, or New York, or whatever state it may be.

An interesting feature of a motor trip such as this, is the frequency with which you run across the same people at different places—and at the second or third meeting their attitude is likely to be that of longtime friends—especially if they happen to be Ohio motorists or residents of a neighboring state.

PLEASANT recollections of "fine people" extend to every city, town and national park at which we made more than a casual stop, one in particular being a San Diego teacher with whom we became acquainted and who took much time from a busy day to make sure that we found all of the principal places of interest in that city.

AT LOS ANGELES, San Francisco, Reno, Salt Lake City—and other places along the way—it was the same, and a point of special interest is the way in which rangers, and other employes in national parks, make an effort to be helpful to visitors . . . and the uniform courtesy that marks the attitude of each of them. Men who measure up to such standards must be carefully selected—and they are.

ANOTHER thing that attracts notice is the striking similarity in appearance of people who make up groups with which you come in contact. Representatives of various classifications in a men's service club, for instance, are amazingly like those in the same professions or lines of business in an Ohio city—and a doctor, preacher or lawyer bears the same identifying marks in California, Nevada or Utah, as in Ohio, Indiana or Michigan.

In Salt Lake City it is the wholesomeness and fine character reflected on the faces of those you meet, that makes the strongest impression, while in a Reno gambling club the impression is the exact reverse—painted, tawdry women operating tables or playing the games, and crafty, greedy, dissolute or gullible men crowded around game tables and slot machines—all bearing Nature's unmistakable mark of their way of life.

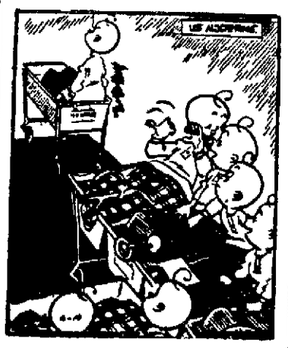
THIS brief backward look is taken at the west entrance to Yellowstone. It is intended to comply with the request to "tell about the fine people you meet." The conclusion is that you meet "fine people" wherever you go—but none finer than in Mansfield, Ohio.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT



"He can't stand crowds."

U. S. AIR FORCE WILL SURPASS GERMAN ARMADA

New War Secretary For Air Defenses Rushing Plane Building Program.

(By Special News Service)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt's appointment of the first "assistant secretary of war for air" since 1932 has stimulated Washington talk that the United States is going to build an air force superior to Germany's vaunted Luftwaffe.

That is no small chore, considering this country's late start and current estimates that Adolf Hitler has 1,000,000 airmen in four vast air armies.

However, Germany has to contend with war losses and restricted supply sources whereas the $4,000,000,000 American aircraft industry, now expanding by leaps and bounds, is in the most fortunate position of any on earth. It soon will be bringing battleplanes off mass production assembly lines.

Surpassing the Luftwaffe seems less fantastic to those who recall that an infant American aircraft industry was geared to produce 21,000 planes a year and had $100,000,000 of orders on Armistice day 1918.

Today's plans call for annual training of 30,000 airmen or a possible 800,000 in all, and production of 33,000 super-warplanes by July, 1942, and 37,000 a year thereafter. Secretary Stimson says there soon will be 61 military and civilian schools to train pilots, bombardiers, aerial gunners, navigators, observers, mechanics and the whole host of experts who make up the air crews of this most individualistic of American arms.

Marked absence of White House comment or explanation when Mr. Roosevelt named Robert A. Lovett to the assistant secretaryship, which has been vacant since the Hoover administration, gave big-air-force advocates a green light for speculation. Some wondered whether it indicated White House belief that war was nearer American shores than popularly supposed, or simply that this country is learning a preparedness lesson too long neglected by European democracies.

The latter idea is bolstered by the president's selection of a business man for the job. Lovett is a former partner of Brown Brothers, Harriman and Company, New York, and once was connected with the Union Pacific railroad. He is a determined Texan, brought here last December by Stimson to serve as his special assistant in expanding the army air corps.

Lovett declined to talk about his new post in advance of senate confirmation but his colleagues say they know his mind well enough to be confident that, given time to gear industry to preparedness demands, he intends to turn out "the damndest striking force in fifty future years of aerial combat."

They say that despite his silence he considers the improved long-range bombers "the grandest ships aloft" and believes the new interceptor-fighters cannot be matched by any of Hitler's marvels. He is drawing heavily on British combat experience with American planes for the pattern of future production.

Lovett ought to know plenty about these things. He was a navy flier in the last war and received the navy cross for overseas services. His job will be to coordinate warplane design, production, equipment and personnel, and to build and train on whatever subsequent scale congress finds necessary to national defense.

A few plain figures tell the whole story of air corps expansion. In 1936 congress gave the war department only $54,178,000 over and above the actual cost of paying and maintaining the army. This money was for guns, ammunition, equipment and whatever extracurricular work it did to perfect, improve and explore new weapons, tanks, airplanes and such. The annual appropriation never got more than $30,000,000 above that figure until 1940 when it shot up to a staggering $320,429,000. Then the army began to get the planes it never before could buy when bombers, for instance, cost $800,000 apiece.

Mr. Roosevelt never could fill the war department air job until there was money to build up the air corps. He told all comers that without funds there was nothing for a secretary to do. Now he has both.

Lend-Lease Voyage

Testing 'Ash Cans of Death'

(Editor's Note: This is the third and last in a series of eye-witness accounts of what happens to an American Lend-Lease war vessel after it becomes a fighting unit of the British navy.)

* * * * *

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(AP Feature Service Writer)

ABOARD H. M. S.—AT SEA—"Release depth charge!"

The order came down from the bridge of our lend-lease ship. The English tar at the racks on the stern pulled a plug, and the ash-can of death to submarines splashed into the ocean.

We put on a burst of speed while the bomb was finding the deep level where it would burst automatically from pressure. I braced myself for an explosion.

I got the surprise of my life. I heard a noise like a distant shotgun firing in a foggy November field. A sort of a "Boom." In a minute or two I saw a great area of the ocean behind us suddenly flatten out, glisten in the sun. There was a shimmery, rapid vibration on the surface, like heat waves, only faster and mushier.

That was all.

"What?" I asked. "No explosion?"

"No," explained the officer at my side. "Not at that depth. Nor fish, either."

He was looking over the side, obviously disappointed at bringing up no fresh fish for supper.

Nor was there any submarine, for we were just practicing with American depth charges. Our senior officer was putting our squadron through the paces of submarine attack, our last drill before I was to leave ship at an Eastern Canadian port.

I was glad of that for the crew's sake. I though they needed a respite, even though they never seemed to mind the pace. We had zig-zagged ourselves seasick. We had signalled ourselves blue in the face. We fired practice rounds frequently, did 45-degree starboard turns.

'Your Women? Fresh.'

Now we were about to get a rest. I went below, asked my cabin boy to pack me up when he had a free moment.

"Davey," I asked, "what did you like most about America on your brief stay with us?"

"The big cities. They were fine. Life seems to begin at midnight."

"And how about our girls, Davey?"

"They're a bit fresh, don't you think, sir?"

"Fresh?"

"I've seen them roll their stockings in the street, sir."

Davey was embarrassed.

He and the other lads who kept the wardroom shipshape and fed the crew obviously were tickled pink with their American ship. What impressed them most was the gadgets.

"There seems to be a gadget for everything except your fingernails," he said, 'and you're likely to get them clipped too if you don't mind out."

Our food was well prepared, extremely clean, and less greasy than the fare on most American warships Outstanding was their standard curried rice with chutney, although it's hot enough to scalp a fellow.

Skip the Coffee!

The coffee? Let's skip it. They tried very hard, out they just don't know what to do with coffee. The big coffee percolator—a standard fixture in the crew's quarters of every American warship—was soon being used to distill cocoa.

British officers liked American desserts better than their own, wished they could get coffee the American way. But they didn't like our cigarets very much, thought they were a bit strong. I thought the same thing about theirs.

The ship lost its prohibition regulations when the British took over. With them came barrels of rum. Every man over 21 years old got his three fingers of grog every night—or the equivalent in pay, about $1.50 a month. Nearly half the men prefer the pay to the rum. When I tasted the stuff, I agreed with the men who took the pay.

SEVEN MILES AWAY is another ship, to which the sailor is signalling. Searchlight, made in Cincinnati, can be seen at long distances even in daytime.

AMMUNITION—MADE IN U. S. A.: American guns require American ammunition, so lend-lease sailors take on a load from U. S. coast guard vessel.

I couldn't find a soul with a complaint against the lend-lease vessel I was leaving. That is, I could dig out only one grumble.

"Fess up," I said to one of the officers. "Isn't there one single thing you don't like about this ship?"

"Well, if you put it that way," he said. "I own the bunks in the cabins are a bit too comfortable."

"Too bad," I sympathized.

"Oh, I remedied that well enough. I stuck a board under the mattress. Now I sleep like a babe."

'Chow' In Navy Best In World at 43 Cents a Day

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The average cost of feeding a sailor in the navy is 43½ cents a day, according to testimony presented to a senate appropriations subcommittee.

Rear Admiral Ray Spear, navy paymaster-general, told the committee, which recently approved the $3,446,000,000 navy supply bill for 1942, that the cost of feeding sailors during the first quarter of 1941 was almost exactly the same as during the final quarter of 1940.

The navy ration, most liberal allowed by any government in the world, by law is:

Eight ounces of biscuit or 12 ounces of soft bread; 12 ounces of preserved meat or 14 ounces of salt or smoked meat, or 20 ounces of fresh meat, fish or poultry. 12 ounces of dried or 18 ounces of canned vegetables, 4 ounces dried fruit or 10 ounces of canned fruit. 1.6 ounces of butter; 1.6 ounces of cereals, rice or starch foods; ½ ounce of cheese; 1.2 eggs; 1.6 ounces of lard or lard substitute; 5 ounces of sugar; 2 ounces of cocoa or coffee or ½ ounce of tea.

BOOKS CLOSED ON MICHIGAN'S HOMESTEADS

Land Pioneering Marked by Many Struggles In Past 45 Years.

LANSING, Mich.—(U.P.)—The era of homesteading in Michigan—a 45-year period which brought settlers of all nationalities to the lakes and forests of the north and the farms of the central section—is ended.

The last Michigan homesteaders were five persons in the village of Harwood, in the Upper Peninsula copper country, who recently received deeds to 40 and 80 acre parcels of land after living on it, improving it and paying a 10-cents an acre homesteading fee.

Michigan homesteading is a thing of the past because the supply of state-owned farm land is exhausted. In 1935, the legislature repealed the law under which homesteads were taken up, and lands now reverting to the state are largely non-agricultural. Agricultural properties that revert to the state because of delinquent taxes need not be given away now—they always are sold immediately.

The last homestead certificate issued in Michigan was dated Oct. 29, 1935 and was to be replaced late in 1940 by a deed if all its terms were met. It was certificate No. 6800, but far fewer than 6,800 farms resulted from the homesteading plan. Cancellations were common as hopeful families unused to backwoods life give up a desperate struggle to make a living on the poor soil of the scrub-pine and ore country.

The first Michigan homestead grant was issued July 11, 1895, but earlier homesteading was carried on in the state on federal lands and so-called swamp-lands granted to the state by the federal government in 1850.

All recent homesteading, however, was under an 1893 law designed to return to tax rolls tax-delinquent lands which in that year began to revert to state ownership.

A man eager to begin farm life often failed to scrutinize closely the agricultural possibilities of the land for which he had contracted, records of the state conservation commission show. In one anual inspection report, now in the commission's files, appeared teh story of one farmer who was homesteading a hilly section of land with a team of horses. The report added that the horses were lost when they fell out of the pasture. Even Castle Rock, a stone premontory overlooking the straits of Mackinac at St. Ignace, was homesteaded.

In 1933, when industrial Michigan cities, burdened with heavy welfare rolls turned to the idea of obtaining homesteads for families on relief, it was found the state owned little if any available land that could be farmed successfully. With the award of the five Dickinson county deeds, homesteading in Michigan became a part of history.

The Virgin Islands consist of St. Thomas, St. John, St. Croix and numerous tiny island.

Montreal In '42 Will Celebrate 300th Birthday

MONTREAL—(U.P.)—This city, the largest in Canada, will celebrate its 300th anniversary next year.

One of the mementos of the tercentenary celebration will be "Miss Montreal" statuettes in the garb of Evangeline—white fichu and demure white apron.

The Montreal Tercentenary Commission has delegated production of the statuettes to Georges and William Hutchison, who began a revival of ancient pottery making two years ago.

The glazed clay statuettes will be produced by hand labor. To make the dolls a thick solution of washed and sifted clay, known as "barbotine," is poured into a mold made from the original clay model. This plaster of Paris mold absorbs water from the clay solution and gradually a shell forms which corresponds to the mold's outline. After the residual solution is poured away, the mold is opened, and the doll is removed and allowed to dry. The clay shell then is fired in a kiln.

BUYS FROG FARM

DES MOINES, Ia.—(INS)—The city of Des Moines recently launched preparations for raising a crop of frogs, after it became owner of a frog farm at a tax sale. The purchase was made in order to protect city assessments. "At the last tax sale, I bought a soap factory," Harry Millstead, delinquent special assessment collector, said. "But this is tops—a frog farm."

LITTLE FIRE

WATERYBURY, Conn.—(U.P.)—When 12 companies answered a fire summons everybody figured the city was burning down. As it turned out, several persons rang alarms for the same fire—a short circuit in an automobile. The damage was insignificant.

Rev. Henry May Says the Vows For Henry May

DALLAS, Tex.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Henry May was listening in the next room as her husband, ordained minister and clerk of the Dallas county criminal court, performed a marriage ceremony.

"And now," May intoned, "I pronounce you Mr. and Mrs. Henry May."

The next instant, the minister's wife appeared in the doorway to upbraid May for his "mistake." He looked calm.

As soon as the couple left, Mrs. May called for explanations.

"That wasn't a mistake," her husband said. "Look."

The marriage certificate he held was issued to Henry May and Miss Ruth Ranson of Longview, Tex. Not related, the two Mays never had seen each other before.

Parade Wednesday Highlights Three-Day Program of Association.

CRESTLINE — One of the largest crowds ever to attend a public affair in Crestline turned out for the parade of the 68th annual convention of the Northwest Ohio Volunteer firemen here yesterday.

The procession which moved down Seltzer street was headed by sheriffs, mayors and police chiefs of Crestline and nearby cities. Twenty-two bands and drum corps in the line of march were interspersed with fire apparatus, floats and uniformed firemen.

At the business session held at the high school auditorium in the morning G. E. Hildred of Napoleon was re-elected president; J. W. Bardner of Ashland, was re-named secretary; Frank Ottney, Gibsonburg, treasurer and J. W. Fisher, Columbus, historian. Harvey Hughes of Defiance was elected vice president to succeed Albert G. Probst of Norwalk.

Delphos was selected as the 1942 convention city. Napoleon had made a spirited bid for the convention.

One hundred forty-five delegates of the 150 in the district registered and 93 were in attendance at the session.

The convention formally opened Tuesday night with a banquet at the Eagles hall and an exhibition fire run by the Crestline department to a blazing building which had been fired was made.

First prize of $100 in the fire drill contest was won by Woodville drill team; second prize went to Adams township and third prize to Gibsonburg.

The fire company having the largest percentage of its membership at the business session was the Edgerton fire department.

THEATERS

Films "Flying Fortress."

For the first time in motion picture history the Army Air Corps permitted a close-up of the nation's "Flying Fortresses," in the current Ohio attraction, "I Wanted Wings." Heretofore only filmed at a distance for news-reel distribution, the great bombers had their interior "shot" for this production showing how the air corps trains its cadets. Ray Milland, William Holden, Wayne Morris and Brian Donlevy head the cast that has Constance Moore and Veronica Lake.

Homespun Theme.

Clarence Budington Kelland's famous storekeeper has a two-fold problem on his hands in "Scattergood Pulls the Strings," playing at the Madison. His efforts to keep a young couple together despite the town's busy-bodies and to help a runaway lad find his father furnish motives for the plot. Guy Kibbee, Susan Peters and James Corner are in the cast. "There's Magic in Music," the co-attraction features Allan Jones, Susanna Foster and Margaret Lindsay.

Horror Bill.

"The Mad Doctor," featuring Basil Rathbone, John Howard and Ellen Drew furnishes one-half of the double horror bill showing at the Ritz. Ellen Drew is also in the co-attraction, "The Monster and the Girl," with Robert Paige and Paul Lukas.

Dictator Travesty.

Charlie Chaplin in "The Great Dictator," showing at the Park perpetrates a masterful travesty on an easily recognized ruler. As the ranting, neurotic dictator, using an undecipheral gutteral he bombasts his followers in public to make-up for the inferiority he feels when alone. He is also the little ghetto barber with no mind for anything but to be left in peace to pursue his romance with a simple peasant girl. Chaplin is supported by Jack Oakie, Paulette Goddard and Billy Gilbert.

Ohio Lady Has Felt Better Ever Since Taking 'Vendol'

Distress of acid indigestion, pains in muscles of back and legs, dizziness, and other symptoms due to constipation quickly responded to this medicine with a 17-year reputation. "Try it yourself," she advises.

MRS. LUCILE RICE

Mrs. Lucile Rice, living at Springfield, Ohio, says, "When I'm constipated I suffer terribly from symptoms like dizziness when I stoop over, pains in the muscles of my arms, legs and across the small of my back, and feels life I hurt all over. Acid indigestion drives me almost frantic, and what little food I force down tortures me with gas, bloating, sensations of a lump in my throat that I can't swallow, all resulting from constipation.

"I'll bless the day I first took Vendol, because I have felt better ever since. It gives the most satisfying temporary relief from constipation that I need so badly, and with this relief I never suffer the distress of sour stomach, biliousness, dizzy spells, aches or pains. Vendol proved a wonderful medicine for me so I advise everyone to give it a chance to help them, too."

Vendol is a satisfying laxative for the bowels, mild diuretic to the kidneys and carminative for the stomach. It has been helping people for 17 years and all over this state reliable men and women praise it for the benefits Vendol brought them. Give it a trial today. The larger size bottles are most economical. All druggists sell it, and it is recommended here by Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & Fourth Sts.; Weinberger's, Leed's, and Muir's Drug Stores.

Films "Flying Fortress."

For the first time in motion picture history the Army Air Corps permitted a close-up of the nation's "Flying Fortresses," in the current Ohio attraction, "I Wanted Wings." Heretofore only filmed at a distance for news-reel distribution, the great bombers had their interior "shot" for this production showing how the air corps trains its cadets. Ray Milland, William Holden, Wayne Morris and Brian Donlevy head the cast that has Constance Moore and Veronica Lake.

Homespun Theme.

Clarence Budington Kelland's famous storekeeper has a two-fold problem on his hands in "Scattergood Pulls the Strings" playing at the Madison. His efforts to keep a young couple together despite the town's busy-bodies and to help a runaway lad find his father furnish motives for the plot. Guy Kibbee, Susan Peters and James Corner are in the cast. "There's Magic in Music," the co-attraction features Allan Jones, Susanna Foster and Margaret Lindsay.

Horror Bill.

"The Mad Doctor," featuring Basil Rathbone, John Howard and Ellen Drew furnishes one-half of the double horror bill showing at the Ritz. Ellen Drew is also in the co-attraction, "The Monster and the Girl," with Robert Paige and Paul Lukas.

Dictator Travesty.

Charlie Chaplin in "The Great Dictator," showing at the Park perpetrates a masterful travesty on an easily recognized ruler. As the ranting, neurotic dictator, using an undecipheral gutteral he bombasts his followers in public to make-up for the inferiority he feels when alone. He is also the little ghetto barber with no mind for anything but to be left in peace to pursue his romance with a simple peasant girl. Chaplin is supported by Jack Oakie, Paulette Goddard and Billy Gilbert.

PLANE MAKING IN AUTO FIELD SEEN LASTING

Industry May Produce Low Cost Aircraft After Emergency.

DETROIT—(U.P.)—There are increasing indications that the automobile industry will expand into the broadening field of commercial and private aviation after the present crisis is passed.

The possibility that car manufacturers would turn their vast resources into mass production of planes when the market assumed some proportions has been accentuated ever since they started giving aid to the hard-pressed aircraft companies for defense production a few months ago.

Many observers believe that an aftermath of the war will be a demand for "flivver" planes by thousands of men who are trained as pilots in the defense program, and the automobile industry will not pass up this lucrative field.

In the rush to produce bombers, aircraft companies have sub-contracted much of their work to automotive concerns which merely take the blue-prints and go into production. The stimulus of these special aircraft divisions in the motor companies may be enough to turn them toward research and designs of their own when the defense situation has eased.

General Motors Corporation already has developed the Allison plane engine and has another division producing aero products, while the Ford Motor company and Chrysler corporation are experimenting with plane engines of a powerful, new design. The Packard Motor Car company, Buick, Studebaker, Hudson and Graham Paige are making plane engines or engine parts under license from aircraft companies.

General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, Hudson, Briggs and Murray body are preparing to manufacture bomber parts and sub-assemblies and with this experience it is possible they will venture further into aviation if an expected market for small planes develops.

Ford recently announced intentions of developing a plastic "flivver" plane, priced for the average family. Few manufacturers including the aircraft people doubt that Ford can do with a small plane the same that he did with his Model T.

General Motors owns a large block of stock in the North American Aviation company and could easily push through mass production plans at that outlet.

It is pointed out, however, that few automobile companies have done research work in the aircraft field and some that formerly tried to go outside their own field eventually gave up. A broadened market would permit plane output on a mass production basis, however, and no other industry in the world can assemble a complex machine faster than automotive firms.

Ford with his huge tri-motor transports in the early '20s set an entirely new pace for the struggling aircraft concerns. He withdrew from the business later but always has been intrigued with the possibilities of making an inexpensive plane.

IT'S REALLY SO

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—If grandpa says "I feel it in my bones," he's probably right. That old saw, according to Dr. Charles B. Davenport, of Carnegie Institute, has a real basis in science. "Bone cells are as truly responsive to directive thrusts and pulls as muscle cells," said Dr. Davenport. Bone cells respond to stimuli in a different way."

College Women To Learn More About Defense

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—The American Association of University Women will hold its national convention here May 5 to 10, with civilian defense problems in the spotlight.

Consumer Commissioner Harriet Elliott of the National Defense Advisory Commission, will address the convention on woman's place in the defense program. Erika Mann, daughter of Thomas Mann, noted German author, will discuss means of preserving American ideals during the emergency.

Dr. Caroline Ware, Miss Elliott's assistant, will lead the discussion section of civilian defense problems. Dr. Eveline Burns of Columbia university, director of relief program surveys for the National Resources board, will speak on protection of civilian standards of living under the defense program.

Progress of the association's drive to establish a million-dollar endowment fund for research fellowships for women will be celebrated with a banquet at which Gisela M. Richter, curator of department of Greek and Roman art at the Metropolitan Museum in New York and Margaret Mead, anthropologist and author will speak.

FACTS ON FIRES

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—Believe it or not, oil refineries, tank farms and service stations are only one-third as likely to have a serious fire as the average home. A motion picture has shown, researchers for the Atlantic Refining company revealed that probability of a tank fire in the average petroleum plant is one fire per plant in 450 years. Corresponding probability for the average residence is one in 150 years.

Piqua Man Could Soon Notice Big Difference In Way He Felt

Claims His Sleep Was Broken Several Times Each Night by Disturbing Nightly Risings—Suffered Pains and Cramps in Legs and Hips—Bee Bee's Gave Him Splendid Results.

"I was always well until the last months, I have suffered from a serious kidney trouble which caused unlimited suffering," says Mr. O. C. Tobias, 72 years of age, R. F. D. 1, Covington, Ohio.

"My sleep and rest was broken several times each night by too frequent kidney actions. The urine passages were accompanied by a torturing burning and smarting sensation which made it still more burdensome. My back, arms, wrists, legs and hips were full of sharp pains. My muscles and joints were so stiff and sore. Dizziness and spots before my eyes were common and aggravating.

"After taking Bee Bee's for only a few days I could notice a big difference in the way I felt. Those terrible cramps and backaches are only a memory now and nightly risings have been reduced. Before I used Bee Bee's my wrists were so stiff and swollen if I turned my hand or lifted something, my wrist was full of pain."

"I recommend Bee Bee's to every one who suffers with kidney trouble. Try it and see for yourself."

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

The Legends of Broadway.

(No. 12—The Ringside Faces.)

THE legends of Broadway have been written in the faces of those who sit at ringside tables . . . the pretty faces, the famous faces, the hard faces, the faces framed in ermine and chinchilla and platinum hair, but seldom in halos.

Dorothy Kilgallen

These people never sat in corners, unless they were with some one they shouldn't be with; and where they sat there were champagne buckets and the little toy cannon noises of corks popping, and laughter that you could hear above the music.

You would know these faces, even though you never passed the red velvet cobra at a night club doorway. Because eventually these faces traveled everywhere; they were transferred by the swift decalcomania of fame from the night club mirrors to newsprint.

A tall, thin man whose ascetic face was set in a stern mold sat in a box at a Broadway night club. With him was a young girl who used no cosmetics to hide her plentiful crop of freckles—and he seemed to guard her earnestly.

When photographers came he shooed them away; when the girl spoke he bent his head to listen; he never looked away from her face. His manners were much too Old World for Broadway, that's why you noticed him.

But actually she was of the Old World, he was just plain Joe Blotz, American. He won her, and today they are Mr. and Mrs. Vic Oliver. The headlines knew her as Sarah Churchill—daughter of the present Prime Minister of England.

The head waiter bowed the three men and the beautiful woman with them down to a ringside table. The lovely lady laughed at the comedian and applauded the singer who followed him. Then came the show girls.

The curtains opened and four tall beauties walked in listless mannequin fashion down the left runway. All wore raven black wigs. Again the curtains opened, and four more walked down the right runway..

Then for the final time the curtains parted, and four girls walked out to the center of the stage—wearing platinum blond wigs.

The beautiful lady at the ringside table rose from her seat, crying, and left the room. She was Jean Bello, mother of the late Jean Harlow.

Four fluttery girls and a little furrier filled the major portion of this ringside table's rim. They seemed a fidgety party, for night owls, and the empty seat at the table seemed to contribute to their uneasiness.

But the absent gentleman joined the four girls and the furrier soon after they arrived, and he was fidgety, too. He kept turning around to look at the door. Suddenly he jumped up, rushed to the door, talked to a lad and rushed back to the table.

Then the merrymaking really began.

For the fidgety gentleman had just received word that his picture, which had opened that night, had won raves from the critics. He knew he was on his way to fame. He was George Raft.

A choice table this night was occupied by four aggressive-looking women of various ages, a personable young man, and an elderly nervous little gentleman with a white mustache. Only the elderly gentleman ate—the others ordered soft drinks.

It was the dance set just before the floor show, and the maestro on the podium urged his men on as they played the popular airs of the day.

The little gentleman ate away without looking up.

When coffee was served the young man called for the check. When the change came the women arose and the little gentleman drained his cup—to the last drop—and left with them. Not once had he glanced up from his meal.

The little gentleman who didn't hear the music or see the show was Arturo Toscanini.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Joseph Cotten, with more reason than most newcomers to risk a splurge, still hasn't "done over" his dressing room.

ROBBIN COONS

He hasn't bought a ranch, or an estate, or even a rose-trellised cottage. He likes it out here, but the Cottens are renting a house and they are just beginning to contemplate, with caution, sending for their furniture.

"I want to see me in a few pictures first," says Joe Cotten, who is a striking actor for many reasons, high on the list being that he never acts like an actor.

You might as well get used to the name of Joe Cotten. He'll stick around. He was that honest dramatic critic in "Citizen Kane," and his was a memorable role in a memorable movie. Already he's one of the top leading men—there are four—with Merle Oberon in "Illusions."

HE'S a resourceful gent, this Joe. Having just turned 34 on May 15, he's done practically everything in and out of acting. Blue-eyed, square-jawed, with curly light brown hair, he's the current object of the lady fan mag writers' devotion.

The acting bug bit him hard back in Petersburgh, Va., his home town, and from the time he was 16 he began doing things about it. Periodically, between mundane jobs, he began trekking to New York. In Miami, Fla., where he worked occasionally as a reporter, he joined a little theater group, each summer pounding Broadway pavements.

He hit New York permanently by walking into David Belasco's sanctum and getting a job. A letter from a Miami dramatic critic did the trick—"the only time I ever heard of a letter of introduction doing any good." Belasco made him understudy to Lynne Overman in "Dancing Partners," later to Melvyn Douglas in "Tonight or Never." Then came 56 weeks of stock in Boston—hard but good training.

"I've seen players 'do over' their dressing rooms," he says, "and get the job finished just as the closing notice went up."

REQUEST SAFE PASSAGE FOR NAZI CONSULS

U. S. Asks British Aid In Ridding America of German Officials.

By LLOYD LEHRBAS

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States has requested Great Britain to assure "safe conduct" through the blockade for all German Consular officials in this country, it was learned authoritatively today, as the first move in carrying out President Roosevelt's order that they depart by July 10 because of acts "inimical to the welfare of this country."

The obligations, as well as the interests, of the United States are that the German officials be safely transported to their homes, it was explained, and not be permitted to transfer their operations to Latin American republics where Axis-inspired activities already exist.

The state department's prompt action in undertaking to arrange for "safe conduct" through the British blockade was described in informed quarters as presaging a flat rejection of the German government's protest against the White House order.

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles provided a broad hint yesterday that the German protest would be rejected when he said he had informed Hans Thomsen, the German envoy, it would be given consideration.

At the same time, however, the undersecretary disclosed that arrangements were already under way for the departure of an estimated 125 consular officers and employes in 24 American cities on the ground they had engaged in "activities wholly outside the scope of their legitimite duties" and "of improper and unwarranted character."

Under normal procedure, it was said, Great Britain would accord "safe conduct" to the consular officials, in the same manner they permitted Admiral Alberto Lais, Italian naval attache, to return to Italy after he had been charged with implication in the sabotage of Italian ships here, and requested to leave.

A question was raised, however, whether the same immunity of diplomatic courtesy would be extendede to employes of the consulates, or to the estimated 50 employes of Transocean News Service, the German Library of Information, and the German Railway and Travel Bureau, who were also ordered to leave this country.

SCHOOLS GET STATE FUNDS

County's Rural District Given $3,543 to Help Retire Debts; City's Share In Doubt.

Richland county rural schools had received $3,543 today from the state department of education to help them retire a school foundation debt incurred in 1938.

The largest allocation, for $1,600, went to the Butler schools. Amounts received by other districts included Lucas, $775; Cass township, $187; Plymouth, $379; Springfield township, $467, and Union rural schools, $68.

The state assumed responsibility for retiring the notes about two years ago and since then has made periodic payments on them.

Clerk John H. Eisaman of the Mansfield board of education, said there was a misunderstanding over the amount the city schools still owe and they are not expected to receive any funds for debts until the actual debt has been determined.

He said school records here show two notes for a total of $61,768 still outstanding while the state records list only $31,000 in old school debts. Eisaman said the state may have made payments on the notes without his knowledge.

PREDICTS DROP

Ebright Sees Sales Tax Decrease From Auto Output Curb.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — State Treasurer Don Ebright today predicted a 33 per cent drop in sales tax collections from automobile sales this year as a result of restriction in motor car production due to the defense program.

Despite the decline in this source of revenue, total sales tax collections in 1941 will exceed last year's $52,974,000 total, he added.

WATER ORDERED

Cleveland Instructed to Supply Institutions Free.

COLUMBUS— (U.P.) —The state supreme court today granted a writ of mandamus compelling the city of Cleveland to give free water to public, religious, charitable and educational institutions.

John A. Hickey, Cleveland public utilities director, had refused to comply with a city ordinance authorizing the free water. The court granted the writ in connection with six similar suits.

GETS DAMAGES

Bartender Upheld In Suit By Supreme Court.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — The state supreme court today upheld a bartender's claim that he was entitled to $450 damages for tripping over a water hose.

In Cleveland, Joseph LeConti got a $450 judgment against the Cleveland Railway company, contending that he was injured when he tripped over a hose used by a crew that laid paving between car tracks.

Injuries suffered in the fall caused him to be away from work for some time, he said.

The appellate court also ruled for him and the supreme court refused to review.

BOYS TAKE RIDE

Start 1,000-Mile Horseback Trip, Seek Blacksmith.

YOUNGSTOWN — (UP) — Barring lost horseshoes, two boys expect to make a 1,000-mile trip on horseback, starting today.

Edward Lawton, 13, Canfield, O., and Kenneth Taylor, 14, Salem, O., are all set to ride for six weeks, using back roads to avoid automobile traffic and eating and sleeping at farmhouses.

Their biggest problem—a blacksmith, in case a horse throws a shoe.

WOMAN BEATEN, THEN TARRED

Police Say Clevelander Was Stripped of Clothing, Then Left In Street.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Mrs. Anna Kupisz, 36, was found lying on a freshly tarred driveway in Brookside park early today, bound hand and foot and stripped of all her clothing except her shoes.

Hysterical and only partly conscious, she was taken to City hospital, where police attempted to learn her story.

It appeared, said Police Lieut. Wayne Sorge, that Mrs. Kupisz had left her home to go for an automobile ride with one or more men. She had been forced to drink whisky and then was beaten, he said, after which she was thrown from the automobile and rolled in the coating of tar and creosote until it covered her body.

Her husband, Lawrence Kupisz, 41, told officers that he and his wife had been sitting on their front porch, and that when he returned from a brief visit to the kitchen she was gone.

County Commisisoner Guy Stewart and Clerk P. S. Carroll of the board of commissioners were the envy of all other fisherman at the courthouse this morning. The two went to Charles Mill lake yesterday after work and came home with 31 big crappies, catching them before dark. They used small minnows for bait. Each gave the other credit for catching most of the fish.

Four more "cider hounds" were taken in by Mansfield police last night. Although the first batch were taken to the Columbus workhouse in station wagons, borrowed for the occasion, the newest offenders were only fined and committed to the Richland county jail. Police are toying with the idea of serving doughnuts just to give the cider-drinking customers a "homey" feeling.

FACING COURT

Shelby Girls To Get Hearing on Delinquency Charges.

The three Shelby school girls who left home 10 days ago with a troupe of automobile stunt drivers will be brought into county juvenile court Friday morning on delinquency charges, juvenile officers said today.

The girls, including two sisters, were questioned by Prosecutor Harold Lutz after they came home voluntarily four days after their disappearance. They have been at home since they returned.

Four drivers with whom the girls said they went to New Castle, Pa., were held for a time in the Pennsylvania city and then released because county officials here could not extradite them on charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors. The charge is a misdemeanor, not serious enough for extradition, the prosecutor said.

The girls, from 14 to 17 years old, met the four men in Mansfield and left with them, hitchhiking back to Shelby, they told sheriff's deputies.

TALK USE OF RIVER CRAFT IN SHORTAGE

OPM Asks Survey of Equipment In Mississippi, Ohio River Valleys.

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—A veritable parade of powerful, snub-nosed towboats pushing tank barges the 2,000 miles from the Louisiana oil fields to the upper Ohio river may be created to help relieve the threatened oil and gasoline pinch on the Atlantic coast resulting from a shortage of sea-going tankers.

From some point just this side of the Allegheny mountains the oil would be trans-shipped by rail, truck and pipeline.

As part of a program now in its formative stage, well-posted river men disclosed today, the Office of Production Management and the defense emergency council has asked river carriers' organizations in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys to make a voluntary survey of all available floating equipment.

"The proposition is on the fire," was the comment of Capt. O'Slack Barrett, president of the Mississippi River System Carriers' association. "The only question is availability of floating plant. If the boatyards can get priority on steel and other materials, they will build more barges and towboats as long as there's need."

Yards all along the Ohio are building tank barges as fast as they can get material, and terminal facilities are being expanded at some points.

As outlined at present, the program would call into being a vast fleet of oil tows, some operating through the intracoastal canal from the Texas oil ports and more from the huge refineries at Baton Rouge, La., up the Mississippi and Ohio to some point in the Pittsburgh area.

One possibility discussed is putting terminals up the Monongahela river, which with the Allegheny forms the Ohio at Pittsburgh and is "just across the mountains from the Atlantic coast." Some river men believe, however, it would be better to stop the tows at Wheeling, W. Va., and Steubenville, so as not to congest further the Pittsburgh district. The Monongahela, tapping the West Virginia coal fields, has the heaviest traffic density of any river in the world.

At the terminals the oil would be pumped into storage tanks and then into railroad tank cars, trucks, or into present or new pinelines crossing the mountains. There is one crude oil line with a capacity of 17,000 barrels a day running east from Ohio to near Lancaster, Pa., across the divide, and three gasoline lines flowing west.

River men declared that a recent proposal to build a new pipeline from the oil fields to the east coast was impractical now. They said that neither the money, the time, the men, nor the vast quantities of material needed was available.

While oil barges have not been standarized in size yet, the most popular type has a capacity of 8,000 to 10,000 42-gallon barrels, and a good-sized oil tow carries up to 35,000 barrels.

Shipping by barge would be somewhat more expensive than by tanker or pipeline. The latter run from 12 to 15 cents a barrel from Texas to Bayonne, N. J., and the latest figures quoted from Baton Rouge to Pittsburgh by river were around 60 cents a barrel, although some oil companies are understood to be offering bonuses for quick shipment. Rail charges are quoted above $2.

London Welcomes Rare Bargains In Fresh Peaches

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON —(AP)— The coming of warm weather and ripening of fruit brought rare bargains in London's crowded markets today.

One store had a shelf of peaches which a Georgia grower wouldn't bother to send to market and the price was 75 cents each.

"Yes sir," said a clerk. "We've sold quite a few. There's nothing like a fresh peach, you know."

Lots of strawberries — Knotty little specimens—were on display at another store for sale at $3.80 a pound.

A shop offered unrationed cheese from Wisconsin at a $1 a pound. "It's straight from America," the clerk said, "and shoppers like it mighty well."

Tomatoes have come down. You could get them at many places for $1 a pound. String beans sold at 90 cents a pound.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

The tone of the leader of my father's men was so decisive that it admitted of no contradiction, and I was quick to yield the part of my own plan which he wished to modify.

"You will station the men wherever you think best, of course," I said. "I only suggested the places."

"The most of them are all right," he said. "Now, when do we start? And—is the light off in that room?"

"It will be as soon as I get there," I answered.

"Close the living room door so no light creeps in," the leader said. "We'll put the light out here just before you go back into your suite. Then, as soon as you're through the other door, we'll get down and creep in to the different stations in your bedroom. You're described it—nothing for us to trip over?"

"Not a thing," I responded.

"Then that's all right," he said. "We've got the set-up from this map."

"And there isn't a cough or a sneeze in the whole lot of us," he said with all the effect of a chuckle. "And we can hold our breaths in seven different languages. So don't go worrying about our end of it."

I wondered if he and his associates were perhaps worrying about my part of the performance, and Gus mustered courage for a final protest.

"It'll be all dark. Couldn't one of us pretend to be you, and lie down on that bed?" he asked.

"Yeh, one of us could do it," the leader admitted. "But those babies are foxy; no telling what they might do. This way it's foolproof."

He turned to me with an almost ludicrous, but compelling, admonitory air.

Leader Gives Instructions.

"Only one thing, lady!" he said firmly. "Don't you worry about giving us any signal. We know when those lads are getting ready for something dangerous; you don't. We've tangled up with 'em so often that we've got a sort of sixth sense about 'em.

"If he starts to chin with you, talk," he went on, and I found myself listening with breathless attention.

"It doesn't matter what you talk—say the multiplication table if that's what he wants, but play up to him. And—" his words took on more emphasis—"when we nab him, your job's done. Don't waste time screeching, or trying to help us. Just grab the pillows and cram them over your head and body."

He was talking to me as if I were a nervous school-girl, I told myself resentfully, and with a childishness of which I was promptly ashamed, I put a question.

"Suppose he should try to open a closet door?" I asked.

"It will be just too bad for him," the leader said grimly. "The minute he touches the door, the man back of it will slam it against him so hard he won't have time to catch his breath before the rest are after him.

"We hope he will do just that," he added. "That would be the easiest way out. The other thing's a bit ticklish, but we'll manage that. Is there anything more you'd like to ask us?"

May Be "A Bit Ticklish."

My pulses had slowed and chilled a bit at his evident expectancy of something "a bit ticklish" in the experiment of which I was to be the central figure.

"There's nothing more," I answered, trying to appear nonchalant. "I shall go back now. You may open this door in one minute. My bedroom will be in darkness and the door to the living room closed in that time."

"Okay," the leader said, and with a feeling of deflation which was not doubt salutary for me, I went back into the bedroom, closing the camouflaged door softly after me. Then I went swiftly on into the living room, switching off the bedroom light, and closing the door after me as I entered the living room.

"I thought I never would find that perfume for Mary," I said, keeping my voice high-pitched. "But I have it at last. I am so sorry to have kept you waiting."

Then, as Olga and Philip rose to their feet, I stepped nearer to them and lowered my voice to a whisper.

"When you leave here, please go directly to the other suite, and wait there for me," I said.

Loneliness Phobia Often Disastrous

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

When you hear of some middle-aged man or woman marrying a boy or girl of whom the elder partner might be a parent or grandparent, put the rash act down to loneliness.

Perhaps you've read in your papers of the young man of 24 who married his landlady, more than twice his age, and absconded with her life savings on the day of the wedding. You could actually hear people say, "She should have known better," but for me the robbed landlady gets nothing but sympathy. It was only because she "was old enough to know better" that she was victimized by the worthless Get-Rich-Quick youngster now being held under $15,000 bond.

Nothing is so tempting to lonely middle age as youth. By some oblique reasoning, men and women who are getting on in years imagine they may remain younger a little longer if they are associated with youth. They've seen neglected old people, and think to avoid the inevitable by keeping up with the young Joneses. But the young Joneses, unless they are marrying for money, lots and lots of it, will have none of them. They're too busy keeping up with each other.

The best medicine for lonely people is to stop thinking of their own solitary condition and to take up some cause, study, avocation—something which will put them in contact with their fellow creatures and make them dwell less on their own unhappiness.

Loneliness is a bad habit, and lonely people should try to understand their own difficulties. They should remember that they are likely to find a congenial friend or sweetheart among the stayers-at-home than among the lively frequenters for dance-halls.

In other words, all that is necessary for lonely people to do is to froce their way out of their own unhappy shells and seek each other out. Hearts need love as much as fish need water or lungs need air. But it's just about as safe for the aging man or woman to seek for something young and glittering as it is for a crawling baby to reach for a bright knife or a pair of scissors because the thing has attracted his eye.

As long as people have dramatic emotions it's folly to point out the danger of living by thrills, when thrills are what they're after. But the weight of evidence is against a Sixty "who feels as young as ever" to find anything in marriage with Sweet Sixteen but disillusionment and unhappiness.

Friendship, hobbies, interest in causes may seem a chill substitute for the divine madness of falling in love, but it certainly keeps a person off the "anxious bench."

Here's hoping that the Washington landlady may get back her savings of $2,100. It's probable the young man knew what he was about when he engaged board with the widow lady, as he married her under an assumed name.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

ARTIFICIAL FINESSE

There are combinations of the cards which afford you no chance at all to finesse successfully if you lead them yourself. But, if an opponent leads the suit, you may be able to put in an intermediate card which will knock out a card a couple of levels higher, and therefore build up a finesse situation against some other card on a later round of the suit. These synthetic or artificial finesses can produce just as important tricks as the standard kind.

West made a very risky lead, indeed, when he chose the dummy's suit, the diamond 2, to open here—probably the worst lead in the hand. And he got what he deserved for his unsoundness. The club 2 would have been an infinitely sounder lead.

Just notice what happened after that lead. South, a thinking player, reasoned that West probably had four of the suit headed by either J or Q, but not both. So he put in the 8 from dummy. That forced the J to cover, and the A won.

After three trump tricks, South returned to the diamond suit by finessing the 10, which held, and the K then furnished a discard for th spade 3. By means of this play, he limited his losses to two tricks in spades and one in clubs, so made his contract.

How in the world could South ever make the contract without that help? He had to count on the one possibility that West had the diamond 9, plus either the Q or J. If those situations prevailed, he could succeed by aid of his friendly enemy. Otherwise he would be down. Notice what would have happened if he had unsoundly played the diamond 10 on that first trick?

Braves Batter Fostoria Birds Twice On Lions' Nigh

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Chief Alex Clowson of the Mansfield Braves is knocking on wood these days as he considers the recent epidemic of football scores that has hit the Ohio State league.

There was that 21 to 0 shellacking given Fostoria Monday night by Lima, in which the Pandas booted the extra point after all three touchdowns.

And there was a 21 to 4 gridiron score chalked up Tuesday night by Fremont over Findlay, and the same night a 16 to 5 trimming handed Tiffin by Lima.

"It can't happen here," quavered Clowson, vigorously batting away at a table top.

"We haven't really looked bad in any game, and we've been in all of 'em right up to the end. And to keep our reputation as a hustling ball club (rap, rap, rap) we can't afford to be on the short end (knock, knock, knock) of one of those 21 to (boom, boom, boom) nothing things."

He was really rapping on wood when he got off that speech.

Yes, Alex, you couldn't afford one of those things. Some bright guy would be sure to call your club "Clowson's Clowns," and that wouldn't be fair.

* * *

Mansfield fans should remember one thing when they consider the present standing of the Ohio State league, which doesn't show the Braves on top:

The Braves haven't had their ball club on the field once since the practice game with Ontario a week before the season opened.

Injuries have plagued the team from the opening bell, and the lineup each night has had some make-shift switch to get nine ball players on the diamond.

Eddie Evans pitched that 21 to 0 victory for Lima, allowing the Red Birds only five hits. But Eddie's slipping. He fanned only 10 Red Birds, far below his average of 17.

And who do you think was one of the Fostoria hurlers taking that cleaning? Soapy Lathers! He came in from shortstop when the Birds' mound talent gave out.

* * *

I've been waiting all season for the bugs to gather under those Fairground floodlights, but I'm happy that they've stayed away even though they've kept me from calling the Fairground the land of the fleas and the home of the Braves.

Billy Conn Has Title In Grasp, Then Slugs

Knockout In 13th Round Results From Challenger's Over-Eagerness

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—For fleeting, golden moments last night, Billy Conn of Pittsburgh held the heavyweight championship of the world within his grasp.

Then Billy gambled, tried to match punches with Joe Louis, and the big Negro snapped out of his strange lethargy and knocked Conn kicking in the 13th round before a thrilled crowd at the Polo Grounds.

Conn, the 174-pound gamester, was well in front when the end came, suddenly and unexpectedly. Louis, drawn too fine in his training, had looked a slow, sullen defender of the crown. Conn had danced around him for half the distance, tied him up in the clinches, then had come on to slap the Bomber's teeth out.

At the end of the 11th round the Pittsburgh wonder boy had spread his mouth wide in a grin as he returned to his corner and waved triumphantly to the gallery stretching far back into the dark stands. He thought he was "in," and so did an amazed audience.

In the twelfth round, the slim handsome challenger sent Louis reeling against the ropes with a vicious two-fisted attack. Louis looked slow, unable to take advantage of the targets offered him. The more than 50,000 electrified fans in the big ball yard were only waiting, tensed, for the final bell of the fight and the announcement that the "winnah and new champion" was Billy Conn.

Then the 13th round began. Louis came out, looking worried, and Conn rushed to meet him. From the challenger's corner blurted the warning cry: "Move around," as it had come from Conn's manager, Johnny Ray, from the opening bell on. But Billy was heedless. He went tearing to meet Louis.

* * *

A left hook caught Billy alongside the head and staggered him. He fell into a clinch. Louis, finally aroused, poured everything he had into the boy from Pittsburgh. Five consecutive rights landed flush on Conn's jaw before he finally crumpled to the canvas. He was down, still trying to struggle to his knees, when the count of 10 came and Referee Eddie Josephs signaled that it was all over.

Then they half-carried the stripling back to his corner, the blood pouring from his nose and from a cut under his eye. He still had a smile on his lips, a kid full of courage and glory.

Later he cried in his dressing room as though his heart would break, but the last the crowd saw of him he was holding out his hand in congratulation to the Negro who had beat him down.

Seldom has a heavyweight fight crowd seen the scales of victory shift so suddenly. Up to the instant when Louis caught and downed his man, it looked like Conn had made good his boast and bedazzled the champion, a far bigger man. Louis, for all his 199½ pounds an his vaunted punch, had looked like a slothful, disgusted fighter up to the instant when he connected.

The official paid attendance was announced as 54,487 with an approximate gross gate of $450,000—making up the most attractive fight from a financial standpoint since 72,000 saw the second tussle between Louis and Max Schmeling three years ago.

Conn Walks Into Kayo With Title Won

Billy Conn, the curly-haired youth who had the heavyweight title virtually jingling in his pocket up until this moment in the 13th round, lies knocked out on the canvas at New York's Polo Grounds after walking into a punch that Louis, in desperation, shot out with neck-cracking force. A crowd of 54,487 fans paid an estimated $450,000 to witness this 18th title defense of Champ Joe Louis.

Even Uncle Mike Breaks Down to Give Conn Kiss

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Mike Jacobs, a fight promoter and a one-time ticket broker, is reputed to have a heart of granite and no more emotion than a contented cuttlefish idling in warm waters.

So it was quite a surprise to the assembled press when he walked into a dressing room in the Polo Grounds at 11:31 o'clock last night and kissed Billy Conn on the left cheek. It was a hasty, embarrassed, fatherly kiss and Uncle Mike tried to cover it up. But he couldn't and it quieted the turmoil in that room as nothing else could have done.

Uncle Mike was mad as hell when he saw everybody looking at him and he got madder when a couple of tears got loose from his eyes and started rolling. He leaned over quickly, whispered something to Conn and scrammed out of the joint. I don't know what he said, but I know what I would have said. I would have said: "Attaboy, kid."

* * *

That's what almost everybody was saying as they went home under the June stars. Conn, in defeat, was their hero. He was out-weighed, out-gunned, and believe it or not—out-smarted by Joe Louis, but he gave 54,000 persons something to carry down the years. He gave them the memory of a frail stripling who came within a whisper of winning the heavyweight championship of the world, the memory of a gallant guy who lasted almost 39 minutes against the most destructive puncher in the business and carried the battle to him a good part of the way.

* * *

There is one electric second of the fight that I'm stowing away among my souvenirs. It was four words that Conn spoke as he raced out of his corner at the start of the ninth round and jabbed Louis on the kisser. Conn grinned as the jab landed, stuck his face toward Louis and said: "Joe, I got you."

A baffled expression came over Louis' face. Then Conn set out to make good on the boast. He rattled left hooks off Louis' head and jabbed the champion silly. Conn was on the march and Louis was in full retreat.

The irony of the ending was that Conn, the smart guy, was outsmarted. Maybe not by Louis, but certainly by canny old Jack Blackburn, Joe's trainer, who hung his razor-scarred face over the apron of the ring and saw things not visible to the eyes of men who were standing on their seats yelling and telling one another that the heavyweight championship of the world was about to pass hands. Blackburn saw that Conn was getting too confident and too eager, that he was missing with his left now and then and leaving his jaw wide-open as a mining camp on Saturday night. Between the 12th and 13th rounds Blackburn whispered the words. Louis nodded.

Came the 13th and Conn threw a left hook that was six inches wide. Then the lightning flashed and the thunder rolled. Louis crashed a right to the jaw and Conn wobbled backward.

"Now, now," somebody yelled in Louis' corner.

Seven punches, rights and lefts, fell on Conn's jaw. And there, all of a sudden and to the stunned surprise of everyone except Joe Louis and Jack Blackburn, lay Conn. His great heart told him to get up, but his legs said no and kept saying no until a man in gray shouted "ten."

As the crowd surged toward the gates a middle-aged lady remarked: "I could kiss that Billy Conn."

Skip it, lady. Uncle Mike Jacobs has done done it.

Kansas City Hangs Tough

Blues Down Louisville To Take Lead.

(By Associated Press)

Columbus, the pre-season favorite, Minneapolis and Louisville all have been tabbed by their ardent supporters as the 1941 American association champion, but it appears that the Kansas City Blues still are the team to beat.

Manager Billy Meyer's Blues have been taking on all comers for two years past now and haven't finished worse than first yet. And the recent brilliance of Meyer's pitchers indicates the Blues are going to take a lot of beating this season.

Kansas City jumped back into first place last night with the cooperation of Toledo, which obliged by crushing the Minneapolis Millers.

Rinaldo J Ardizoia, 21-year-old native of Italy, was the hero of the Kansas City triumph, mowing the Louisville Colonels down with seven scattered hits for a 40 to 0 decision.

Another 21-year-old rookie, Frank Biscan, was the Toledo star, giving the fence-busting Millers only three hits in a 7 to 0 shutout.

* * *

Columbus, the leader only a few days ago, remained in close striking distance of the crest by whipping St. Paul, 8 to 4, with timely hitting.

Siegbert Clouts Five Doubles In Five Trip

Mutryn Smacks Drive High Over Scoreboard; Moore Hits Homer

WITH a Lions' night crowd of 800 looking on, Mansfi hustling Braves dusted off their batting eyes last n and smacked down the Fostoria Red Birds twice in (State league imbroglios, 12 to 2 and 9 to 2.

To Harry Siegbert, Eddie Mutryn, Bill Salem and Graf Moore the lion's share of the slugging honors on this Lions' night.

Siegbert, veteran first sacker who has been playing in spite of an injured ankle that has slowed him down since the beginning of the season, had a perfect night in deuces, banging out five doubles in five official times at bat and drawing walks on his other two trips to the dish.

Harry was "hittin' 'em where they ain't" and where they couldn't get right away, and if he'd had two good legs to run on he'd have had at least three triples in his slugfest.

His first blow was a blazer over the first base bag and the right field corner. His one hit high on the wall in center, and the rest went to left center and left.

Eddie Mutryn drove home s runs in the two tilts, but his best blast was the kind for w he is rapidly becoming fa around the O. Now It's Nova Who's Confident

NEW YORK —(INS)— A tall college man, physically resembling the character in Jack London's famous story, "The Abysmal Brute," sat with friends after the Louis-Conn fight last night and said:

"Yes, I can beat Louis. I can take his punches and can hit hard enough to knock him out. He has defended the heavyweight championship of the world successfully for the last time."

The boy who made that remark is Lou Nova of California, who belted out Pat Comiskey, Max Baer and others with his left and right hand smashes to the jaw—punches with plenty of power.

They meet in three months. In the meantime the challenger will spend his time in the mountains in upper New York state and he will train at Speculator, where Max Schmeling trained for his last fight with Louis.

The champion is going to take a rest from the training grind on which he has been since last November and start hard training again in mid-August.

ANNOUNCES ELIGIBLES

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The U. S. G. A. announced today that approximately 150 players, including those who qualify at Cleveland, Cincinnati and Huntington, W. Va., will be eligible for the national Omaha field club, Aug. 25-30.

Indians Become Ferocious

17-Hit Attack Includes Five Home Run Clouts.

(By Associated Press)

THE CLEVELAND Indians suddenly have become ferocious at the plate and look capable of gobbling up the lesser lights of the American league in big gulps.

* * *

All that has kept the Tribe from making a runaway of the penfnant race before now has been weak hitting and, everything considered, they have been doing right well with their tap and touch system.

* * *

Yesterday, however, they really opened up—getting 17 hits including five home runs and four doubles to overwhelm the Philadelphia Athletics, 14-2. They scored seven runs in a rousing second inning and kept pouring on the power right through the game. Hal Trosky hit two home runs and Lou Boudreau, Ray Mack and Ken Keltner one apiece.

This display of fireworks was accompanied by a four-hit pitching performance by Bob Feller, who coasted to his 14th victory of the campaign.

The Indians' first place margin was increased to three full games as the Chicago White Sox trimmed the New York Yankees by one run for the second day in succession, 3-2. The Tribe finishes the series with the A's today with Jim Bagby opposing Bill Beckman.

* * *

The Detroit Tigers tore into the Boston Red Sox for a 5-2 victory behind the steady, eight-hit hurling of Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, who gave up only one extra-base blow a homer by Jimmie Fox.

The St. Louis Browns squeezed out a 3-2 verdict over the Washington Senators in a night game that drew a meager crowd of 7,000 at the nation's capital.

The St. Louis Cardinals continued their climb in the National league with a 7-3 triumph over the Phillies while the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers were dropping a 5-1 nod to the Chicago Cubs.

Max Lanier pitched six-hit ball for the Cardinals and Johnny Hopp and Enos Slaughter backed him up with a pair of two-run homers.

The Boston Braves beat the Cincinnati Reds 4-2 with Al Javery besting Johnny Vander Meer in a pitching duel in which each allowed seven hits.

Baseball's curfew rule caused its first major league tie in a struggle between the New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates which was interrupted for an hour in order that the fans in Pittsburgh could listen to a broadcast of the heavyweight championship bout of Joe Louis and their hometown here, Billy Conn.

* * *

The game was stopped with the score tied 2-2 in the middle of the fourth inning and although the teams played a total of 11 frames, there never was any more scoring.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—By this time all of you know that Billy Conn lost his chance to win the world's heavyweight title by getting a little fresh with Mr. Big in the 13th round last night. . . . What some of you may not know is that the date for the next million dollar gate will be some time in September at the Yankee stadium. . . . If anybody ever laid the scene for what the fight mob call "a natural," the Messrs. Conn and Louis did it last night. . . . Here is the picture: Conn was leading what many believe to be the greatest fighter of our time by four rounds going into the 13th. . . . Then what happened? . . . Instead of stabbing, jabbing and boxing Louis into a state of utter bewilderment (which he was doing), our hero lost his head. . . . He elected to get in there and slug, then he got kissed—not once but several times—and before you could say Jack Robinson, all was over for Conn—except a rich return bout in September which Mr. Mike Jacobs obligingly will stage.

THE MOURNING LINE.

Unhappiest guy in the house was Lou Nova. . . . He was in line for a September title shot, with either Louis or Conn, but things being what they are, he'll have to postpone his chance for at least a year. . . . Unless, of course, Abe Simon upsets the dope next month, which isn't likely.

ROUNDING UP THE STRAYS.

Glad to note peace and quiet have returned to the ranks of the warring Phillies. . . . Published reports of Billy Conn's marriage seem to have been a bit premature. . . . There was a humorous sideline when Connie Mack was given his degree at Penn Military academy. The old gentleman was eulogized for a lifetime in the service of "football." All of which reminded Connie of the time he spoke at Long Beach, Calif., and referred to "your fair city of Pasadena."

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

C. M. Gibbs, Baltimore Sun: "Conn brought a 1941 record of three knockouts into the ring as his contribution to the most amazing fistic buildup in years. . . . He kayoed such celebrities as Don Hassett, Gunnar Barlund and Buddy Knox. . . . All three rolled together would make a first class heavyweight."

ONE-MINUTE INTERVIEW.

Joe McCarthy: "Did I ever see a perfect ball player? Sure, Frank Frisch. . . . He could run, hit from either side, could throw, bunt and had a great competitive temperament. . . . He had everything."

CHICAGO —(INS)— Long John Rigney, pitching mainstay of the Chicago White Sox, trades his baseball uniform tomorrow for one provided by Uncle Sam.

Pros Battle In Rich Joust

Seventh Annual Inverness Tourney Gets Underway.

By FRITZ HOWELL

TOLEDO—(AP)—Off and running in a four-day gallop for gold and glory, 16 of the country's No. 1 professionals opened the seventh annual $7,000 Inverness invitational four-ball matches today.

There was little pressure on the eight pairs, for even the last placers were guaranteed $50 per day, plus expenses, for the duration. With a bit of diligence and skill they might, by finishing out front, hoist their daily "take" to close to $200 per day, for the first place twosome will split $1,500.

Par was expected to take a terrific beating, as usual, in the best ball classic, with at least 200 birdies and several eagles being snared in the seven rounds of match play.

* * *

Today's round scheduled these matches: Lloyd Mangrum and Harold (Jug) McSpaden, vs. Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan; Sam Byrd and Johnny Bulla vs. Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta; Clayton Haefner and Dick Metz vs. Ralph Guldahl and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, and Horton Smith and Lawson Little vs. Jimmy Thomson and Byron Nelson.

Under the Inverness scoring plan, the team winning a hole gets a "plus" while the loser gets a "minus." At the finish of the tourney, the team with the greatest plus takes down the top prize and the others taper off to where the last placers divide $400.

* * *

After today's single round, which follows a clinic in which the 16 starters will display their skill at "pet" shots for an expected gallery of 5,000, the eight twosomes will swing into a two-a-day routine through Sunday, after which they'll split up the $7,000 pot of gold.

M'Neill, Riggs Sink Three Foes

CHICAGO—(AP)—Don McNeill, the country's ranking amateur, and ex-Champion Bobby Riggs, favored to meet in the finals of the National Clay Courts Tennis tourney, faced serious opposition today in the quarter finals.

* * *

Each has breezed through three opponents in impressive style, but from here on the going will be tough with six seeded players and two dark-horse contenders in the running.

* * *

McNeill, Oklahoma City boy now registered from Gambier, O., played Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Calif., today while Riggs, a Chicagoan entered from Clinton, S. C., met Billy Reedy of Beverly Hills, Calif., conqueror of fifth-seeded Jack Kramer earher in the tourney.

Yesterday McNeill polished off National Badminton Champion Dave Freeman of Pasadena, Calif., 5-4, 7-5, 6-2. Riggs defeated Charles Olewine of Santa Monica, Calif., 4-6, 7-5, 6-2, 6-2.

Door's Open In Western Amateur For Young Unknown

By LOUDON KELLY.
(AP Feature Service Writer)

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—tain-bordered Broadmoor course. tain-bordered Boradmoor course.

It won't surprise the natives a bit if a lightly regarded player wins the Western Amateur golf title here July 1-6. Tradition is all with the unknown performer on this high altitude links rolling close neighbor of Pikes peak.

In at least four tournaments played at Broadmoor in years past, the player winning the championship made it his first major victory.

The first case in point had Johnny Goodman as its protagonist. He was just a kid from "across the tracks" in Omaha when he hopped a freight train to Colorado Springs in 1927 and led the field in the Transmississippi tournament. It was the first big prize on his long list that later took in both the national open and the national amateur.

Charley Yates, now an Atlanta banker caught by the draft, had only the national intercollegiate crown to show as spoils for his golf weapons until he beat a fast field in the Western amateur at Broadmoor in 1935.

Chuck Harbert, stoical Battle Creek, Mich., star, now a professional, hadn't won a title against widespread opposition until he captured the Transmississippi here two years ago.

Bea Barrett of Minneapolis, one of the prettiest of the feminine golfers, competed for several years before Broadmoor delivered her first big stake, the women's Western open in 1938.

This darkhorse tradition at the upland course worked in reverse English for Lawson Little, however. When he was still just a little-known, long-hitting young giant from California, Broadmoor was the setting for one of Little's rare setbacks as an amateur. He was beaten by Gus Moreland in the finals of the 1933 Transmississippi.

Moreland, incidentally, was the only champion who has successfully defended his laurels at Broadmoor in recent years.

That's the hoodoo facing Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, 1940 western champion, come July on the 6,602-yard par 70 course with greens that combine satin smoothness with optical illusions. Most of them look at first glance to slant one way when they really dip another.

Commercial Loop Has High Scores

Commercial B league softball teams went into action last night as N. and W. Coals sank Humphryes 25-7; Isaly's squelched Farm Tools 20-5, and the Athletic Supplies edged Mansfield Tires 7-6.

* * *

E. Hipp with five out of six and Stone with four out of five led the N. and W. Coal onslaught. Laipply topped Humphryes' stickmen with two out of four.

* * *

Every batsman on the Isaly ten connected for a hit in the Farm Tools fray. Davis led the hapless Tools with three out of four.

To the Man Who Has Been Wearing Shoes Costing Less Than $5.00

EVERYONE knows how important shoes are in our daily scheme of living . . . and how cheaply constructed, ill-fitting shoes can detract from a man's appearance, comfort and even his efficiency.

It's a pretty generally accepted fact, too, that we get just about what we pay for (no more), and that applies to shoes, clothes, cars, and everything else. So even if you feel that the shoes you've been wearing have served their purpose satisfactorily, we want to tell you a few facts about Siegenthaler's GOOD shoes.

We feature four nationally famous lines of recognized quality shoes . . . Roblee, Bostonian, E. T. Wright Arch Preserver and Nettleton . . . each the leading shoe value in its class. Each is characterized by outstanding style, sound construction, and the finest leathers and materials obtainable.

That's why they retain their smart appearance long after ordinary shoes are worn out. That's why they fit so well, wear so long, and provide a comfort that's a revelation to "tired feet." Once you have worn Siegenthaler's shoes, you'll say as have dozens of other fellows, "Man, oh, man . . . I never imagined that there was so much difference in shoes."

In Style, in Wear, in Comfort and Satisfaction, Siegenthaler's Shoes Are Worth Far More Than Their Small Additional Cost at $5.00 to $12.50.

FARM LEADERS OPEN DRIVE TO INCREASE EGG CONSUMPTION

NEW YORK—(INS)—The little red hen has taken to modern mass production methods with such terrific effectiveness that now she's created a major problem for the nation's farmers.

She and her millions of sister hens on thousands of farms scattered throughout the country are laying so many eggs now that farmers are facing the likelihood of a heavy surplus. Loss of their exports market because of the war has added further complications to the problems faced by egg producers.

Meanwhile the production rate is showing the normal spring increase, moving up steadily from the rate as of January 1, which itself marked the fifth straight year of new-record production. The "rate of lay" on March 1, for example, stood for 43.9 eggs per hundred layers, compared with 26.6 on January 1, indicating a more-than-plentiful supply of "hen fruit" this year.

Seeking to increase the consumption of eggs before the threatened surplus reaches serious proportions, farm leaders have started a campaign to make America eat more eggs Answering the appeal of the producers, chain stores have taken the lead in efforts to induce consumers to eat even more of the product of the nation's poultry farms.

The initial step in the "Eat More Eggs" campaign was the first of two Springtime Egg Festival Weeks celebrated in the early spring. The second Egg Festival was observed by stores throughout the nation during the week beginning May 1. Stores and restaurants also featured eggs in Lent and Easter promotion.

The nation's hens produced approximately 29 eggs for every man woman and child in the nation in 1940, the total of 38,892,000,000 being the largest since 1930's record of more than 39 billion. Farmers got $423,000,000 in cash income from eggs in 1939, the figure representing approximately six per cent of the nation's cash farm income.

U. S. BESTS JAPS IN TRADE TIFT FOR LATIN ORE

Outbids Axis In Bolivia For Control of Tungsten Needed For Guns.

(By Special News Service)

LA PAZ, Bolivia—The United States has come out on top in a struggle with the "Axis" powers in Bolivia for control of Tungsten which is needed in the making of modern guns.

Both the Bolivian government and Federal Loan Administration Jesse Jones have announced that the Metals Reserve corporation will acquire the Bolivian Tungsten output for the next three years.

The competitor in this fight was Japan, which has been buying Bolivian Tungsten for herself and perhaps for Germany.

Tungsten is the stuff gunmakers mix with steel to withstand the shock of shells whizzing through gun barrels.

By outbidding Japan for the contract, the United States assured itself of the Tungsten supply on which it relied during the World war. At the same time, it cut off from Japan a Tungsten supply which Bolivian newspapers say was known to be going to Germany.

The fight for the contract illustrated the competition that is taking place between the "Axis" and the United States for war materials all over the South American continent.

Japan was in the driver's seat in this particular instance. She was buying Tungsten in the open market and paying good prices, when the United States stepped in.

The United States offered to buy at a slightly lower price all the Tungsten Bolivian miners could dig for the next three years.

The Bolivian government, intervening as guarantor of any contract, lined up with the United States because it said:

By preventing war materials from reaching Japan and Germany, it would fulfil its obligation as an American nation to help protect the western hemisphere.

Accepting the lower price on the long term would assure its miners of a fixed income over a period sufficiently long to permit development of new undeveloped mines, whereas accepting the higher price of the Japanese would be to run the risk of the United States entering the war and cutting off Japan from western hemisphere ports.

The Secret of the Marshbanks + + +

CHAPTER XIX

"Now I have a half sister and an aunt and a grandmother and a cousin and I can't claim any of them," she continued, still in the same light, impersonal voice. "I never can claim them. So when I am a wife, Kelly," Cherry said, with a quick glance at him over her shoulder as they walked toward the car, "I want the whole thing. I want some man to think I am perfection. I want romance and glamor and the feeling that we two are all the whole world to each other. No Fran in the background!

"So I do thank you, and the answer is 'No.' And I hope you'll forget that you said anything about it, and we'll have more picnics and walks some day. I'm walking home," she finished, as they reached the car. "It's not far, and I want to be alone. Good-bye Kelly."

"Cherry, you've got me all wrong!" he began distressedly. But she only said good bye again, and walked away down the orchard. After a minute or two he got into the car and drove away.

Cherry walked briskly home, and was in time to help Rebecca get supper for the family and for the inevitable Sunday-night guests. Afterward they played a game, and then stood singing around the piano for an hour. It was nearly 10 o'clock when somebody remembered Monday's classes, and the group broke up.

Rebecca came into Cherry's room a little later to find her in bed, fountain pen in hand, studying away busily, making notes.

"Listen," said Rebecca, "here's something to think about. Mrs. Williams wants you to go with me to the girls' camp in June."

"Visit?" Cherry asked, her eyes brightening.

"Visit nothing. Job. You'd get eighty a month."

"You mean help you manage the camp?"

"Or else I help you." Rebecca was always serene; she looked now at a red apple, bit into it thoughtfully.

"If Mrs. Williams really wants me, I'll go," Cherry said.

Just a week later Cherry sat opposite the judge in his comfortable chambers, the early summer sunlight battering at the window blinds, the hum of the great courthouse proceeding impressively all about.

"It seems to me that you look extraordinarily well," said the judge. "You're not going to turn into a handsome woman on us, are you?"

"I'm doing my best. I ought to look well. I'm having the time of my life."

"It's a success, then? You relieve my mind. I was afraid this appointment meant that something was going wrong."

"Everything's going only too right. I wish I could live with the Pringles forever."

His kindly eyes smiled at her. "Then it's the summer plan—the camp at Big Basin—you wanted to see me about?"

"No, not unless you object. Beck and I can't wait to pack. We go next Tuesday, and the girls begin to come in Saturday."

"Then what was the trouble, Cherry? Your letter said 'trouble'."

"It's this. Amy came down to see me Wednesday. I didn't know she was going to. She wanted to tell me all about the trip and this Navy ensign she's so crazy about"

"Yes, but why look so distressed about that? You like Amy?"

"I do like Amy. Amy's my—of course we're pretty closely related, Amy and I. But one thing is—one thing is that your mother doesn't like me to see Amy too much. She asked me—she practically asked me—not to come to the house any more."

A shadow came over the genial face; the judge's forehead contracted a little.

"My mother did?"

"Yes. She said it wasn't—decent."

"H'm!" the judge said, gravely enough. "I'm sorry she did that. You know how much we all like you, and what reason I have for feeling that I've something to make up to you. Fran was saying only a day or two ago that you'd forgotten us."

"I'll never forget you! But there's more to it than that. Amy came in while your mother was talking to me. I'd reached the house before Amy did, and I was in my room, reading, and your mother came in and said how much she resented my being there."

"How much did Amy hear?"

"Well, your mother had just said that if I didn't break off all my relationships there, she'd have to let everyone know, and Amy too, that we were half sisters. And she said that would hurt my father and my mother, too. And I said that that meant injuring the reputation of her own son! Amy heard that."

"And guessed the rest?"

"Guessed that it was you, instead of your brother Fred. After your mother had gone Amy said that she always had suspected that I was—" Cherry's throat thickened, she looked at him imploringly, "that I was your daughter."

"I see," he said thoughtfully.

"I didn't contradict her — I couldn't say anything. I kept trying to think which would be worse, telling her, or letting it go and talking some day to you."

"Fran and I were in Los Angeles then?"

"Yes. And then I went to Palo Alto and didn't see you, and I knew that your mother cared more about keeping it from Amy than anything else, and I hoped that Amy wouldn't talk. But now Amy's back, and she wants me to come in to spend the night with her next Saturday, and go to the Quatres Arts ball, and I don't know what to do!"

"My mother's a proud woman, Cherry," the judge said, after a silence. "She's had a sad life. My father's illness ended her social interests, after twenty years in which her position had been everything any woman wants—big house, opera box, jewels, Europe. Two years later my young married sister died in childbed, and that embittered her; she's never been the same. The baby died, too; it was a crushing blow to my mother. I was away at the time; Fred was married, and she was a good deal alone with my invalid father. She had queened it here in San Francisco; she seemed to have nothing left. Fred's wife was heiress to all this money Amy'll have, but she was a delicate girl and years went by and there was no child. Fred was restless and unhappy and altogether things weren't in any too good shape when I decided to give up Washington and come home.

"My mother had been living in an apartment hotel and hating it. Fred and his wife, Amelia, had had a little place in Burlingame. But after years, five or six years, I think, she was going to have a baby, and everyone was anxious that this time it should go right. Old Wellington, her father, was an immensely rich man; he was going to come on from New York for the event, and do everything for the baby. Fred, who'd been restless and unsatisfied, settled down all of a sudden. Mother had opened the city house by this time, and they were all together. The baby was coming in November—"

"I know. I'm four days older than Amy," Cherry, listening absorbedly, put in as he paused.

"But you came two months too soon. That's all part of the story. Well! My wife and I and little Gregg got here just a week or two before Amy was born, and what we learned was rather confusing. It seems that Emma's sister, Charlotte Rawlings—much younger than she—was some times at the house, and that Fred had seen this girl, and had taken advantage of her. Emma knew nothing of it until almost the end when Lottie came to her and told her. Emma felt that nobody must know, that her sister's secret must be kept now, of all times, when Fred's wife, who wasn't any too strong, was expecting her own baby any day.

ENROLLMENT JUMPS

ITHACA, N. Y.—(INS)—Enrollment of 50,000 members for 1941 in New York farm bureaus was predicted today by Earl A. Flansburgh, state county agent leader, on the basis of early returns. In 1921, members totalled 49,600, last year the figure was 45,435, and this year it is expected to reach an all-time high. Eighteen out of the first 24 counties to report 1941 enrollments have exceeded last year's totals at the same date.

STOCK ACTION HELD DOWN TO NARROW RANGE

Nazi-Turkish Pact and British Difficulty In Africa Prove Handicap.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The stock market turned in an indifferent performance today with leaders shifting over an irregularly narrow range.

While scattered gainers of small fractions were plentiful near the second hour, there were just about as many issues in arrears.

While mild bullish inspiration still was to be found in the business picture, a slight handicap was seen in the foreign news which included the Nazi-Turkish friendship pact and signs the British were finding the going hard in Africa.

Comforting to market recovery proponents was the survey of Dun & Bradstreet disclosing the country's bank clearings for the week ended June 18 topped the $7,000,000,000 mark for the fourth time this year and reached a peak since the week of Dec. 21, 1938. The total exceeded the comparable period last year by 24 per cent.

Studied was the summary of the Engineering News-Record showing heavy construction awards for the week ended Tuesday climbed to a new 1941 high and were 80 per cent above the like week a year ago.

GAME GOES ON DURING SALE

Poker Players Refuse to Turn In Hands for Auctioneer.

BALTIMORE—(AP)—Not a man moved from his chair or took his eyes from his cards more than a flickering second when an auctioneer at a creditor's sale stepped up to a round table in the Baltimore Athletic club.

"What am I bid for this fine poker table?" he asked the crowd of buyers and kibitzers.

Just to make sure the game would continue, one of the players bought the table. And to make sure the club would continue, two past presidents bought the entire property after bids had been made on individual items.
